Israel to talk peace with Egypt

Israel formally accepted Egypt's invitation to a Cairo conference on Middle East peace Monday and said it would send a former top spy to head its delegation. But it looked as if Israel, Egypt and the United States might be the only ones there.

The Egyptian invitation and Israel's acceptance were conveyed through the Egyptian and the Israeli ambassadors to the United Nations — a move that bypassed the United States as an intermediary and brought together two men who had warred for years on the floor of the General Assembly.

But Israel so far was the only country to have officially accepted.

In Washington, administration officials said the United States will attend but that an official announcement will be delayed while the decision is coordinated with other parties.

THE OFFICIALS said the decision to attend has been made in principle but that tactics, such as who will represent the United States and whether he will visit other Arab capitals after Cairo, must be worked out.

In Damascus, Syrian Pres. Hafez Assad suddenly softened his vitriolic criticism of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat but then, in another surprise, ordered air traffic to Cairo suspended until further notice.

Assad told reporters that, while Egypt and Syria were in disagreement, they were "not divorced."

Later radio announcements said that commercial flights to Cairo were being suspended because of alleged Egyptian mistreatment of arriving Syrian passengers.

SYRIA AND OTHER Arab hardliners also moved ahead with plans for an anti-Sadat summit, although they were split over who should host it.

Radical Iraq, ignoring the summit called for Thursday in Libya, instead said it would hold its own meeting in Baghdad "in the coming week" and would invite all those already planning to go to Libya.

The Egyptian invitation was addressed to "his excellency, Moshe Dayan, foreign minister of Israel," who is on an official visit to Germany, and was signed by Egyptian Acting Foreign Minister Butros Ghali, Prime Minister Menahem Begin said in a speech to the Israeli parliament in Jerusalem.

"Thus begin direct negotiations toward Geneva, negotiations we always wanted, face-to-face negotiations with our neighbors for a true peace in the region," he said.

EGYPTIAN Ambassador Ahmed Esmat Abdel Meguid and Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog met Sunday and Monday — first at the home of a "mutual friend," in New York City, then at the United Nations — to extend and accept the invitation.

The face-to-face meetings were themselves of some historical note since for years the two had battled each other to and sometimes beyond the edge of insult on the Assembly's floor — and politely ignored each other off the floor.

The delegation to the Cairo talks will be headed by Dr. Eliahu Ben-

Rhodesians attack

Rhodesian troops drove 136 miles inside Mozambique last week and killed more than 1,200 black nationalist guerrillas in air and ground attacks that destroyed two guerrilla base camps. The attacks were called unprecedented in scope and ferocity. — Sect. 3, Page 14.

McClellan dies

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., whose relentless pursuit of organized crime in the 1950s and 1960s was instrumental in sending Teamster bosses James Hoffa and Dave Beck to prison, died Sunday night at the age of 81. Funeral services will be Wednesday. — Page 8.

Sox quantity

The White Sox continued to go for quantity rather than quality following the free agent draft, as they obtained Alvin (Junior) Moore, formerly of the Atlanta Braves. They also signed four minor leaguers, while sending hurlers Dave Hamilton and Silvio Martinez to St. Louis to complete an earlier trade. — Sect. 4, Page 1.

Arson suspected

Mount Prospect fire officials have discovered "suspicious circumstances" surrounding the mobile home fire which left a Des Plaines mother and her young son homeless Saturday. An arson investigation is in full swing. — Page 6.

More snow likely

More snow is on the way today with 1 to 3 inches expected under cloudy skies. The high will be in the lower 30s, the low in the 20s. Wednesday will be cloudy and warmer with a high in the mid 30s and flurries likely. — Page 2.

Old Man Winter spares us his fury—temporarily

The Northwest suburbs probably will be spared the full fury of a snowstorm expected to move into the area today, the National Weather Service says, but that reprieve may be only temporary.

A storm that formed over Texas Monday turned into freezing rain and snow as it moved north, prompting the weather service to issue a travelers' advisory for the southern two-thirds of the state today.

The storm appeared to change directions later in the day, however, and weather service officials said that it will be reduced to only snow flurries or light snow — maybe an inch — if it gets this far north.

But a more ominous note is sounded by the long-range forecast, which covers December through February. Weather service officials expect more snow than normal during the period and lower than average temperatures.

The area's mean temperature is 28.5 degrees for December, 24.3 degrees for January and 27.4 degrees for February.

Average snowfall is 10.3 inches for December, 9.5 for January and 8.1 for February.

IF THE FORECAST holds true, the January temperatures will be a welcome change from last January, when the area was brought to a near standstill by a string of bone-chilling cold days that climaxed Jan. 16 when the mercury plummeted to 19 degrees below zero.

The long-range outlook issued Monday is determined in part by a computer fed with weather information from around the country. The forecast calls for lower than average temperatures in the north central part of the nation with above average rain and snow from the Mississippi River eastward to the Appalachians.

Frigid arctic air will stay farther north this winter, and not subject the Midwest to the deep freezes of last winter, the forecast said.

"The pattern is more balanced and that means less extensive cold than last year," said Donald Gilman, director of the long-range forecast office of the Weather Service. "I think it would be pretty hard to match last year."

THE LONG RANGE forecast for last winter correctly predicted much of the nation would be colder than normal, but the current forecast is given a 65 per cent chance of being accurate.

"The forecast is based on the assumption that the upper level wind patterns are going to stay the same, and they don't always do that," said John Coughlin, a weatherman for WBBM-TV in Chicago.

Coughlin said the long-range forecast presents a common weather tradeoff: milder temperatures for more snow.

"That's a well-established connection," he said. "Cold air doesn't hold as much moisture, so there's less snow when it's very cold."

A total of 5.1 inches of snow already has fallen on the area this year, 3.3 inches at O'Hare Airport on Friday, and 1.8 inches more on Sunday. The snow brought with it cold winds, and the temperature dropped to 2 above zero on Saturday.

THE SNOW AND COLD may have numbed suburban residents to the fact that November was a mild month.

"November will go into the record books as above normal," a Weather Service spokesman said. "It was so

Panels give Lake Arlington top priority

Top priority was given Monday to acquiring land for Lake Arlington by two Arlington Heights panels assigned the responsibility of recommending how to spend U.S. community development funds.

The two panels agreed that Arlington Heights officials should follow previous years' guidelines while preparing the village's application for the federal funds, rather than assume drastic rule changes proposed by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development will be approved.

The proposed rule changes would require that community development funds be used to benefit low-income persons and that they be spent in blighted or deteriorating neighborhoods, which the village does not have.

PROJECTS SUCH AS land acquisition for a flood-control project would not be eligible.

The recommendation passed by the finance committee and housing commission states that $411,000 of the $451,000 the village hopes to receive next year should be spent on the flood-control lake planned for a 113-acre site east of Windsor Drive and south of Crabtree Drive.

The two panels rejected a plea from the senior citizens commission that North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., be acquired for a multipurpose center for the elderly as well as a request from the Arlington Heights Park District that $100,000 be set aside to acquire land for a historical prairie farm.

About 25 senior citizens attended a public hearing Monday night to hear John Gianopulos, chairman of the senior citizens commission, ask village officials for the fourth consecutive year to provide an activities center for the elderly.

NORTH SCHOOL is for sale by Arlington Heights School Dist. 25, which closed the 50-year-old building two years ago and now leases it to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The $100,000 requested by the park district is half of the cost of a five-acre site needed for a historical prairie farm planned by park officials. The park district already owns 10 acres north of Golf Rd. at Belmont Avenue and Council Trail Road and has been assured of receiving as much as $100,000 from the state to acquire the adjacent five acres.

The prairie farm development is envisioned as a reconstruction of a post-Civil War farm.

Another use for the community development money suggested Monday by Trustee Alfred Barboro was the creation of a low interest loan program for the rehabilitation of homes owned by low-income residents.

IN ADDITION to spending $411,000 for the acquisition of 78 acres still

Thompson to run for reelection

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Denying he was a candidate for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, Gov. James R. Thompson refused to say he will serve a full four-year term if reelected governor in 1978 as he declared his candidacy Monday.

"I don't think anyone in good conscience can make that pledge. I don't know what the future holds," Thompson said Monday in announcing his plans to run for reelection next year.

Thompson has been heralded by many political pundits as a possible presidential candidate in 1980, but he has repeatedly denied he would seek the job.

THOMPSON, HOWEVER, left himself open for attack by Cook County party leader by saying he might not back the Cook County GOP slate, particularly Louis Kasper, who is slated for sheriff.

Kasper, an aide to State's Atty. Bernard Carey, was a long-time associate of former Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. Thompson has said he believes Kasper is an unacceptable candidate.

"I don't know what we will do about the sheriff's race," Thompson said Monday. The governor may throw his support behind Illinois Assistant Atty. Sen. Donald Mulack who has said he wil oppose Kasper in the March primary.

Thompson, in the middle of a unique two-year term required by the 1970 Illinois Constitution made his reelection statement in a fly-around with stops in Chicago, Rockford, Moline, Peoria, Springfield and Carbondale.

IN CHICAGO, Thompson said he would be willing to debate the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, who is likely to be state comptroller Michael Bakalis.

Bakalis is expected to announce who his running mate will be in the 1978 campaign Wednesday.

Thompson said if elected to a four-year term, his top priority will be creating more jobs in Illinois by striving to make the business climate more favorable.

The governor said his budget experts are looking at ways to introduce business tax incentives witout drastically reducing state revenue. He also said the Illinois General Assembly

Judge orders X-rated film returned to theater

A Circuit Court judge Monday ordered Rolling Meadows police to return an X-rated film seized during a raid at the Meadows Theatre because a police detective allegedly lied to obtain the search warrant used to confiscate the movie.

The search warrant used to seize the X-rated film "Cinderella" was ruled invalid by Associate Judge Joseph H. Schwaba of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose did not dispute allegations by a defense lawyer for the theater that police committed perjury in obtaining the warrant.

Det. Donald Ballantine said in the warrant he had viewed the film at the Meadows Theater, and had found it contained sex scenes prohibited by the city's obscenity ordinance. However, the film did not premiere at the theater until several hours after the warrant was issued Sept. 30.

Charged with the Sept. 30 showing of the film at the theater, at 3265 Kirchoff Rd., are William Farber, theater manager, and Jeffrey Kohlberg, co-owner.

Schwaba set a trial date of Jan. 9, 1978, for the defendants in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

much above normal that the last few days won't be enough to bring the average down."

The high for the month was 73 on Nov. 2.

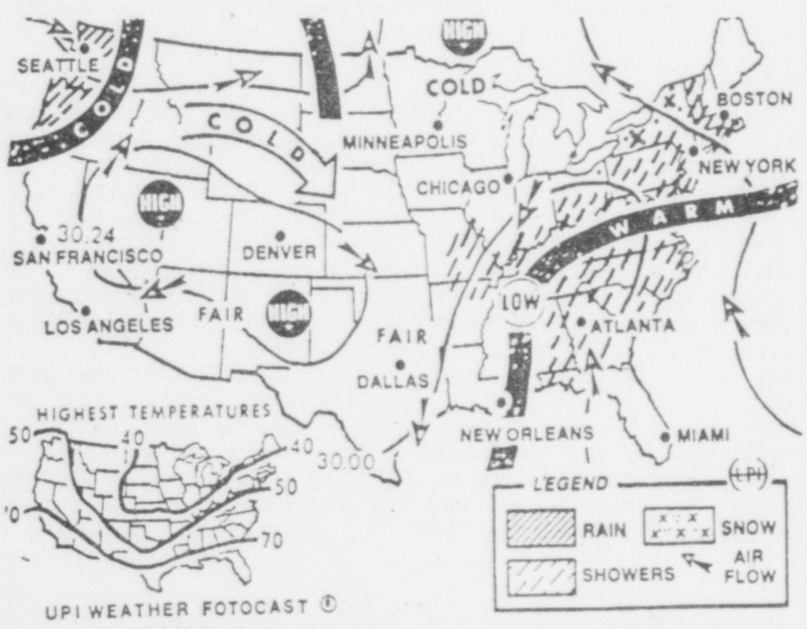

Gilman said the weather patterns, determined by the upper altitude winds, will return to normal this winter.

"The flow across North America last winter was coming rather strongly from the northwest and north, bringing the cold highs down from the Arctic very rapidly and very consistently," he said. "We look for less of that this year and more storms coming in from the Pacific along their more typical tracks, with the cold air (from the Arctic) getting down into the country somewhat, but not nearly as deeply as last year."

PLO denounces talks; Jordan to stay out

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Egyptian and Israeli United Nations ambassadors broke three decades of diplomatic ice Sunday and again Monday to push a Middle East preliminary peace conference in Cairo. Palestinian leaders angrily denounced it and Jordan said it would not attend.

The rapid-fire developments unexpectedly left the United States out in the cold as an intermediary and had most of the 149 member states of the United Nations baffled as to what to expect next.

Egypt's Ambassador Ahmed Esmat Abdel Meguid invited his Israeli counterpart and longtime adversary, Chaim Herzog, to the home of a "mutual friend" in New York City Sunday to invite Israel to the Cairo session. Herzog went, and they talked for 40 minutes, diplomatic sources said.

HERZOG RECIPROCATED Monday by asking Meguid to meet at the United Nations. There the Israeli ambassador formally accepted the invitation from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat — the Middle East leader whose historic journey to Jerusalem started it all 10 days ago.

The Palestine Liberation Organization was irate. The Herzog-Meguid meetings coincided with the U.N. General Assembly's annual debate on the Palestinian issue, and the PLO took the floor to blame the Sadat initiative for triggering an "Arab schism" and to threaten a return to full-fledged guerrilla warfare.

"We are today on the threshhold of a new, dangerous stage where the possibilities for war . . . have been multiplied," Farouk Kaddoumi, head of the PLO's political department, told the General Assembly.

"The Arab schism has become greater as a result" of Sadat's visit to Israel, he added.

"The PLO, and with it all the Arab people, despite its pessimistic view of the events of these last few days, is still convinced that we should pursue the strategy adopted some years ago, that it should continue its armed political struggle until it obtains its political objectives."

AT NO POINT did Kaddoumi mention Sadat by name — and neither did he launch a personal attack, which some diplomatic sources interpreted as a relatively mild PLO position in light of recent hardline statements by the group.

As if to underline the "Arab schism," Jordan announced from Amman and then from the U.N. forum that it would boycott the Cairo meeting.

"Jordan will not participate in any preparatory conference on the Middle East unless all parties to the conflict take part — including the PLO," said Jordanian U.N. Ambassador Hazem Nuseibeh.

The Meguid-Herzog meetings, the first between Israeli and Egyptian U.N. ambassadors in 30 years of conflict, cut many diplomatic corners. One, which came as a surprise in some quarters, was the bypassing of the United States as a go-between.

Washington's third-party role helped set up Sadat's trip to Israel. This time, Egypt and Israel eschewed U.S. help in favor of direct meetings.

THE PALESTINIAN problem has come before the U.N. General Assembly every year since 1947, when the United Nations partitioned Palestine into Arab and Jewish states. The Arab state was never set up.

Israel wants no part of a separate Palestinian state. The Arabs, including Egypt, have demanded that any peace settlement include "ensuring the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

U. N. opinion is heavily weighted on the side of the Arabs and was reflected in the report from the "Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People" that went before the General Assembly Monday to start a debate expected to last four or five days.

Mideast peace agreement may be near: Dayan

Moshe Dayan

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Monday a peace treaty between Israel and its Arab neighbors could be signed soon if there is good will on both sides.

Dayan spoke at a dinner given in his honor by the West German government after Israel formally accepted Egypt's invitation to attend the Cairo conference on Middle East peace next Monday.

"We are ready for every constructive step, as for example the Cairo conference planned by Egypt," Dayan said.

"WE ARE CONVINCED that given good will on all sides there can soon be a settlement to the conflict and the signing of a peace treaty between us and our Arab neighbors.

"We need this peace — and our neighbors need it no less — and we believe in the possibility of cooperation with the goal of turning the Near East into a productive and culturally fertile area for the welfare of its people and the other nations of the world," he said.

Dayan said the visit to Israel of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was the beginning of a new policy, "a policy we longed for since the foundation of our state."

"We hope this political momentum will continue and will bring about a true peace between Israel and its neighbors," he said.

DAYAN SAID Israel and Egypt differ on the demand that Israel return to its borders before the 1967 war and over the issue of a Palestinian state.

But he added, "We hope that in negotiations a way to compromises and to bridging the existing different attitudes of the Arabs and Israelis can be found."

Although mentioning possible compromises, Dayan said Israel would not endanger its existence.

"The danger of destruction that hovered over the people of Israel for 4,000 years, and particularly the horrors of the mass extermination our people were exposed to more than 30 years ago have gone deep into our consciousness," he said.

"WE ARE NOT willing to accept a situation that will again expose us to the danger of destruction."

Dayan flew to Bonn early Monday from Hamburg, where he spent Sunday night as the guest of publisher Axel Springer, an outspoken supporter of Israel.

About 100 members of the Palestinian Committee, which a police spokesman described as "a Communist group," paraded through the business section of Bonn with police permission to protest Dayan's visit.

Israel accepts Egyptian bid to Mideast talks

Elissar, the director-general of Begin's office. He was a key operative in the Israeli spy network in Europe between 1955 and 1965. He will be assisted by Meir Rosenne, legal adviser to the foreign ministry.

An Israeli official said the Israeli delegation may leave as soon as Thursday to avoid traveling on the Jewish sabbath which begins at sundown Friday. In calling for the pre-Geneva conference, Sadat had said talks could start as early as Saturday.

THE INVITATIONS were sent over the weekend to the United States, the Soviet Union, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Syria and the PLO have refused to go and Jordan took a stand somewhere between the two sides by ruling out participation at either the Egyptian or the Libyan meeting.

A government statement said Monday that Jordan would attend one or the other of the meetings only if all the other Arab states did the same. Since Syria has refused to attend the Cairo meeting and since Egypt will not be at another summit, Jordan will stay home.

The position followed an appeal by Jordan's King Hussein for Arab moderation and an end of the attacks against Egypt.

In Washington, Press Sec. Jody Powell said he expected that the Carter Administration will respond shortly to Sadat's invitation.

WESTERN DIPLOMATIC sources said it is unlikely the Soviet Union will accept in view of Sadat's attack on Soviet policy in his speech to parliament Saturday.

The United States and Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference, which held a two-day inaugural session in 1973 and has not met since.

should look into revisions in unemployment and workmen's compensation laws to give businesses a better break.

Citing his balanced budget this year and what he called other achievements, Thompson said, "I am proud of the accomplishments which the Thompson-O'Neal administration was able to achieve in such a short amount of time, and the negative trends of such long standing that we were able to reverse."

The governor said he managed his first year to push through tough crime legislation, a sound road program and to form a good cabinet.

Hayter testifies she backed firings

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter testified Monday it was her "personal opinion" that 28 public works employes should have been fired as soon as they staged a one-day strike July 19, 1973.

Mrs. Hayter told Cook County Circuit Court Judge Joseph M. Wosik in the Richard J. Daley Center, Chicago, that it was her "personal opinion they (the employes) should be terminated," but said she made no decision or took any action before the employes were officially fired July 21, 1973.

Seventeen of the 28 fired employes brought suit against the village for reinstatement and back pay to the date of the firings. After four years of out-of-court negotiating, the case finally went to trial late last month.

Virginia Hayter

DALE BERRY, attorney for the former employes, called Mrs. Hayter to the witness stand as an "adverse witness." He asked her how she could think the employes should be fired at one time, then say four days later that she wished the firings hadn't taken place.

"You may not want to do things you must do as a public official," Mrs. Hayter said. "Once you're entrusted with the public's confidence, you have to watch out for the public welfare."

She said she felt the village's public welfare was served by firing the employes, adding "the whole thing was sad."

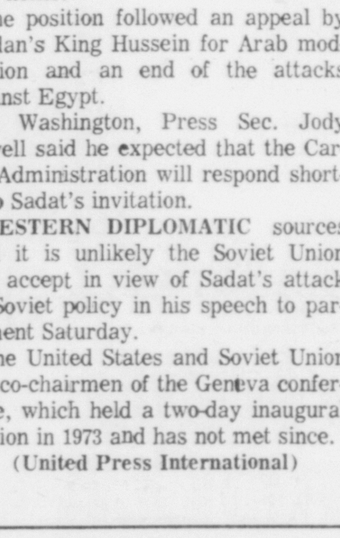

Mrs. Hayter told the court Village Mgr. George Longmeyer gave the 28 employes until noon the day of the strike to return to work, a move she supported, but only because Longmeyer thought it best.

Mrs. Hayter denied she made sympathetic comments about the fired employes in a local newspaper Berry read to her.

Wosik barred the newspaper article Berry read from being introduced as evidence, saying, "In this case, we will not try a newspaper reporter's account of what happened."

The trial is scheduled to resume today at 2 p.m.

New trial motion for Ray goes before judge today

WARTBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — Circuit Judge Lee Asbury will hear a motion for a new trial today for James Earl Ray, convicted last month and sentenced to an additional year in prison for escaping from Brushy Mountain State Prison.

Ray, serving 99 years for the 1968 murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., lost three years good honor time and has been under administrative segregation since he was recaptured following the June 10 breakout.

The motion for a new trial claims that his prosecution on the escape charge in Morgan County amounted to double jeopardy because he already had been punished for the escape through the prison's administrative procedures.

THE MOTION for a new trial also argues that the prosecution failed to prove each and every element of the indictment. During the trial in October Ray's attorneys, Mark Lane and George Buxton III, argued that the state failed to prove Ray had been legally sentenced for the King murder and legally transferred from Nashville to the prison at Petros.

Ray, who escaped with six other Brushy inmates using a ladder fashioned from plumbing materials to scale the prison's back wall, also will be questioned again Friday by staff members of the House Select Committee on Assassinations.

There also was a possibility that some members of the congressional committee might journey to east Tennessee to talk with Ray, 49, about his involvement in the King assassination.

Lane, co-author with Dick Gregory of a book claiming Ray was a minor participant in a conspiracy to murder King, said the last time assassinations committee staff members came to Petros he had found witnesses in Memphis who would testify that Ray was not the man seen at a boarding house from which the fatal shot was fired.

Lane said one of the witnesses is a "respected Memphis businessman" but declined to identify him.

Spying on hopefuls for president told

Former presidential candidates Eugene McCarthy, George McGovern and Lester Maddox were targets of spying by the Chicago Police Department's Red Squad spy team, court documents filed Monday revealed. Chicago patrolman John Valkenburg, formerly a Red Squad member, said he interviewed the three candidates in the 1972 election as part of his official duties. The documents were submitted in connection with a 1974 suit filed by more than 30 community groups and individuals charging he Red Squad with spying on them illegally for political reasons.

Valkenburg invoked the Fifth Amendment right against self incrimination in the written document by refusing to answer questions about his alleged involvement in burglaries of peace organizations while he was a member of the Red Squad, the security section of the department's intelligence division. Valkenburg, recently suspended from the department and assigned to the police auto pound, was charged in September 1967 with participating in burglaries of the offices of the Latin American Defense Organization and the Chicago Peace Council.

The second burglary allegedly involved Women for Peace and the Fellowship of Reconciliaton, which had offices with the Chicago Peace Council. Police said membership lists and equipment were taken in each break-in.

Accountants deny Byrne story

Two accountants who former Consumer Sales Comr. Jane Byrne said could corroborate her charges against Mayor Michael H. Bilandic denied Monday they personally knew of events leading to a taxicab fare increase. Mrs. Byrne said last week Bernard J. Sullivan and Thomas H. Tyler of the accounting firm of Bansley and Kiener performed an audit that showed the proposed 11.8 per cent increase was unjustified. She also said Sullivan and Tyler attended meetings during which she warned Bilandic the figures presented by the taxicab firms were incorrect and a rate increase would be unjustified.

A statement released Monday by Sullivan and Tyler said, "Neither this firm nor anyone employed by it have been employed in the review of records submitted to the City Council in conjunction with any rate increase for cab licenses. "Neither Bernard Sullivan nor Thomas Tyler have attended any meetings attended by both Mayor Bilandic and Commissioner Byrne in which discussion took place regarding taxicab fare increases."

Chicago police Monday issued a plea for witnesses to supply information in the investigation of the execution slayings of two Chicago men in a North Side hotdog stand Nov. 13. Melvin Kanter, 51, and Charles Guccion, 66, were shot to death in the bathroom of Mel's Red Hots on the North Side during an attempted robbery. Police said they ae searching for two men who were seen in the hot dog stand shortly after the robbery occurred.

Illinois briefs

Thompson OKs extra tax law

Gov. James R. Thompson has certified into law a bill authorizing counties to levy an additional 2.5 cents in taxes without referendum, his office announced Monday. The legislature accepted Thompson's amendatory veto of the bill, aimed at covering county costs of collecting and distributing taxes for other local governmental units and school districts. Thompson changed the bill to cover corporate personal property in addition to real property. Under the measure, counties could increase taxes 2.5 cents for each $100 in assessed valuation.

Plates cost less at exchanges

Illinois vehicle license plates will cost 50 cents less than last year at currency exchanges when they go on sale Thursday, Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon announced Monday. Dixon said the maximum allowable service charge for each set of plates sold at currency exchanges is being reduced from $2.75 to $2.25. "I sincerely believe the $2.25 figure is fair to all concerned," Dixon said at a news conference. The secretary said his staff had studied the cost of providing the service, and found the lower fee would cover the cost of selling the license plates. Last year, 92 per cent of the 353,966 plates sold through currency exchanges were sold in Cook County.

Kansas prison escapee trial opens

A Metamora man Monday told a jury Kansas prison fugitive Roy E. Schultz abducted his family last July, took them to a nearby motel and forced the man's wife and 5-year-old daughter to perform sex acts. Bruce Wood testified he and his family were driving along a highway near Bloomington on July 24 when they noticed a man having trouble with his car. They stopped and offered to give the man a ride, but he pulled a gun on them and forced them into a Bloomington motel room.

Wood said Schultz tied him up and locked him in the bathroom, while he made Mrs. Wood and the Woods' 5-year-old daughter undress and perform deviate sexual acts with him in the bedroom. Mrs. Wood was nine months pregnant at the time and the baby was later stillborn. She was to testify Tuesday. The prosecution also called four police officers and two motel employes during the first day of testimony. Defense attorney Robert McIntire said he will have a psychologist and a psychiatrist testify on Schultz' mental state.

Station wagon discovered without Canteen records

An allegedly stolen 1973 station wagon which officials of Airline Canteen Co. claimed contained four boxes of financial records needed in a city investigation was found Monday devoid of any records, police said.

Federal and local investigators said they are seeking four persons for questioning in connection with the missing documents.

Investigators said they also planned to talk with 90 employes of the Willowbrook Holiday Inn, where the vehicle was found, to determine whether anyone saw the suspects near the auto.

THE STATION wagon was discoverd by Willowbrook police during a routine check of the hotel parking lot, police said. The car aroused the suspicions of the police because it was covered with snow and ice and the ignition was tampered with, indicating someone had tried to start the motor without a key.

The auto, thought to be holding written proof of Airline Canteen's operations of newsstands at O'Hare International Airport, was reported stolen Nov. 10 from a parking lot of an Orland Park restaurant.

The company's general manager, Stelios Andos, said he left the records in his station wagon while he was in the restaurant.

Andos said he had picked up the records in connection with an audit by Arthur Andersen and Co. to determine whether the company had cheated the City of Chicago of a large amount of its newsstand concessions.

The audit was ordered by Mayor Bilandic earlier this month after it was found the company failed to file the city's mandatory annual income statements. Bilandic cancelled the company's contract with the city after disclosures of the company's failure to file statements.

Hales' cloutless $9,329 leads 10th Dist. race

From our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Winnetka attorney Daniel Hales appears to have the early lead in the 10th Congressional District's biennial dollar derby.

Hales' lead in fund-raising efforts for the always expensive congressional campaign however, may be muted because he still owes $12,000 from his unsuccessful 1976 effort to win the Republican nomination in the district.

Preliminary campaign financing reports show Hales has raised $9,329. Hales spent more than $80,000 in the 1976 primary race that saw him finish second to former Congressman Samuel H. Young of Glenview.

HALES' EFFORTS are followed by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, who has raised more than $8,077 and Peter Pierce of Evanston who has gathered $1,370.

While the early figures come nowhere near what the final totals will be — Young and his Democratic opponent, U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, each spent more than $200,000 in each of three successive campaigns — the reports are significant.

Porter appears to have attracted many of the more prominent Republican campaign financiers into his camp, while Hales chief financial support has come from relatives.

The early reports show Porter has received $500 from insurance executive W. Clement Stone and an equal donation from his wife. Porter has received six other donations of $1,000.

PORTER'S LARGEST contribution came from Mr. and Mrs. William Graham of Kenilworth, who have each donated $1,000 Graham is board chairman of Baxter Laboratories.

The bulk of Pierce's $1,370 in campaign funds came from a $1,000 donation from A.C. Nielsen, president of the Northbrook-based television rating service.

Coincidentally Nielsen is listed as a member of the Porter campaign committee.

Hales reports three $1,000 contributions. However a statement filed with his 1978 campaign reports shows he intends to use any unspent money to retire the $13,000 in outstanding loans from his 1976 effort.

Hales reports unpaid loans from himself, his mother Marion J. Hales; and his brother, Burton J. Hales.

"Those all are loans from the family and there is no great pressure to repay them," Hales said, adding that the debt will have no impact on his current political campaign.

Two other Republican candidates, Mark Johnson of Morton Grove and Richard Janecek of Des Plaines, have not filed reports.

MIKVA, THE only declared Democratic candidate in the district, shows a campaign fund of $5,870.

In three consecutive campaigns since 1972 between Mikva and Young, the candidates have spent more than $1.2 million, making the congressional race in the district, which stretches from Evanston west to Des Plaines, one of the most costly in the nation.

In each instance, the candidates have kept spending to a minimum. The three top Republicans and Mikva report some minor expenses for printing and campaign organizational work.

Johnson considers declining FBI post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and Judge Frank Johnson Monday discussed withdrawing Johnson's nomination as FBI director because of his slow recovery from major surgery.

Marvin Wall, Justice Dept. information director, said Bell telephoned Johnson at his office in Montgomery, Ala., and they talked about the U.S. district judge's failure to recover from a relapse that followed surgery last August.

"Their decision was to make no decision today but to talk about it again tomorrow," Wall said. "They'll talk about it. They may say, 'Let's think about it a little more — maybe we ought to wait another week.' "

Wall said they also discussed "what the future holds."

ATHLETIC SPACE at Rolling Meadows High School is so tight that dancers, wrestlers and weight lifters must practice together in the same room. Like others faced with this situation, Principal Robert Hoese would like a fieldhouse built.

Repairs plan for Dist. 214 passed by board

A plan to make $17.5 million in improvements to High School Dist. 214's eight schools was unanimously approved Monday by the board of education.

Administrators were directed to find architects to design the blueprints for the renovations as soon as possible.

While no timetable is available for the work, Business Mgr. Robert Weber estimated it will be at least two years and probably longer before much of the renovation can be done.

"WHATEVER we do we should get as much done as quickly as possible because of the terrible inflation in construction costs," board member Marilyn Quinn said.

Upon the administration's recommendation, the following $9.7 million in projects should be started first including:

- Construction of a classroom addition and relocation of the heating plant at Arlington High School.
- Construction of an academic wing at Prospect High School.
- Construction of a fieldhouse, expansion of the cafeteria, locker bays and art area at Forest View High School.
- Expansion of physical education facilities at Wheeling, Hersey, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove high schools.
- Expansion of space for the power mechanics program at Elk Grove.

Top priority also is to be given to about $700,000 in special education changes for handicapped students as required by the state.

The board has to decide whether the improvement plan should be financed through a referendum for a tax rate increase or with existing funds, as recommended by a districtwide citizens committee.

WEBER SAID the district could raise about $15 million for renovations over the next five years without impairing its financial position or raising taxes. Much of this money could be generated by annually setting aside 14 cents of the district's tax rate of $2.39 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation for improvements, he said. This money otherwise would be added to the district's present $22.7 million cash reserve, unless the tax rate were lowered.

Safety and special education improvements could be financed with a special purpose levy that would generate $5.5 million in the next five years, Weber said.

According to state law, 2 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation can be levied for special education and 5 cents for safety construction without gaining voter approval in a referendum, he said.

Board member Arthur Aronson again questioned whether the district will need all eight of its schools in the future in light of projections for declining enrollment.

"IT WOULD BE awful if we decide to fix all the schools and two or three years later have to close one," he said.

Board Pres. Jack Costello said the board already had expressed a consensus that no school will have to be closed in the foreseeable future.

School building repairs list cut

By paring their requests down to what they consider the bare necessities, High School Dist. 214 principals have cut their "wish list" of building improvements in half.

The price tag on the renovations requested Monday comes to $17,476,000, down from the initial $35 million estimate of needed physical improvements.

Principals said the renovations their schools need most are:

- Arlington High School: $5.2 million. Razing the school's academic core and heating plant to make way for a fieldhouse and construction of a two-story academic addition. Also included would be $200,000 in general remodeling.
- Buffalo Grove High School: $615,000. Construction of additional gymnasium space is a top priority, with creation of a storage area for the practical arts department and football field and tennis court lighting ranked second.
- Elk Grove High School: $2.27 million. Construction of additional athletic facilities and expansion of space for the power mechanics program are top priority. Construction of a swimming pool ranks second and additional special education space third.
- Forest View High School: $3.9 million. Construction of a fieldhouse, expansion of the cafeteria and locker areas and enlargement of the art room are first priority. Improvement of the music and theater area is ranked second with locker replacement.
- Hersey High School: $514,000. First priority is for expanded physical education facilities, with a theater storage area ranked second and special education remodeling and parking lot lighting third.
- Prospect High School: $1.4 million. Construction of an academic wing has top priority, with additional physical education facilities, an expended art room and a scenery and band storage room ranked second.
- Rolling Meadows High School: $2.3 million. Remodeling of physical education space is the first priority, with construction of a fieldhouse ranked second.
- Wheeling High School: $1.1 million. Expansion of physical education facilities is top priority, with a new power mechanics room and a music addition ranked second.

Included in the cost figures is $753,000 in special education changes for handicapped students as required by the state and $589,000 in renovations needed to meet the state's life safety code.

EQUIPMENT AND PARTIALLY finished projects take up so much space in Forest View High School's small art room that students have almost nowhere to work. Art programs like ceramics and photography offered in High School Dist. 214's other schools cannot be offered at Forest View because of the space shortage, Principal Jack Martin said.

London marathon to aid the Dills

Students at London Junior High School will hold a ping-pong tournament, basketball marathon and dance marathon Saturday to raise money to help pay the medical expenses of the Robert Dill family of Wheeling.

The money will be used to help pay the medical bills for Dill's 21-year-old daughter, Karen Latzke, who has leukemia.

This fall Karen received a bone marrow transplant at a Seattle hospital from her 12-year-old brother Bob Jr., a student at London.

The cost of treatment for Karen's disease has exceeded $100,000. Wheeling village employes have set up a fund to help Dill, a public works employe and 19-year Wheeling resident, at Wheeling Trust and Savings.

Saturday's event sponsored by the London student council will run from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. at London, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Admission for spectators is 50 cents.

In addition to the ping-pong tournament and basketball and dance marathons, White Sox pitchers Ken Kravec and Jack Kucek will sign autographs between 1 and 3 p.m. at the school. There also will be a raffle with prizes donated by local merchants.

Village not alone; HUD rules also baffle Adlai

U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson was one of the main authors of the legislation that created the U.S. Housing and Community Development program in 1974, but he is just as confused as Arlington Heights officials are about the new regulations proposed for the program.

Stevenson said Monday he interprets the rule changes proposed by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development to mean that communities, such as Arlington Heights, that do not have "economic ghettoes" no longer will receive any of the federal money.

"I feel that HUD again has gone far beyond the intent of the legislation," Stevenson said Monday at a meeting of DuPage County mayors and administrators.

Stevenson objected to the proposed regulations, saying "they're supposed to give broad flexibility for local governments" participating in the program.

"I would like to see more flexibility written in, otherwise I think they could hurt areas like DuPage County," Stevenson said.

THE MAJOR CHANGE proposed by HUD officials would require that 75 per cent of all community development money be spent to directly benefit blighted or deteriorating neighborhoods, which Arlington Heights does not have.

"In looking over those regulations, in particular the 75-25 per cent formula, I came to pretty much the conclusion that you have to create some economic ghettoes to qualify for community development funds," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said he has talked with HUD officials about the proposed regulations.

"It's a confusing situation right now. The regulations sound inflexible, but we keep getting told by HUD that in their administration of the program they're going to be flexible," he said.

Stevenson's only suggestion for now was for concerned municipalities to meet with HUD officials and attempt to determine if their interpretation of the proposed rule changes is correct.

Lake Arlington gets top priority

needed for Lake Arlington, the two panels recommended that $10,000 be set aside for relocation expenses, $11,000 for contingencies and $20,000 for administrative costs, including a housing counselor.

If the rule changes proposed by HUD are passed, village officials will have to revise completely the application for community development funds.

"If the (proposed) rules are to be taken literally they would appear to eliminate any substantial participation by the village," Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said, "unless the village is prepared to undertake projects to make housing and jobs available for low-and moderate-income persons."

Man killed in car crash on Rand Rd.

A 47-year-old Arlington Heights man was killed shortly before noon Monday when the car he was driving was hit broadside at the intersection of Rand Road and Euclid Avenue in Mount Prospect.

Lars Nordmark, 2614 N. Windsor, Arlington Heights, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, police said.

A witness said Nordmark, who was traveling east on Euclid, went through a red light and was struck on the driver's side by a car driven by John Cannizzo, 46, 8 S. Maple St., Mount Prospect. Cannizzo was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was reported in fair condition Monday night.

Man charged in theft of rugs from house

An 18-year-old Arlington Heights man was released on $2,000 bond late Sunday after being charged with burglarizing a home in the village earlier this month.

Jeffrey Knickrehm, 1106 S. Wilke Rd., was arrested Saturday following a month-long investigation and charged with stealing $200 worth of shag carpets from a home at 107 W. Cedar St., Arlington Heights, owned by Carol Faber of Sleepy Hollow, Ill., police said.

Knickrehm entered the home through a window well on the east side of the house and stole two rugs from the living room and bathroom, police said.

Knickrehm is to appear at 9 a.m. Dec. 9 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Seek foreclosure on Kiritsis loan

The company operated by a man held hostage at shotgun point for 63 hours filed suit Monday to foreclose on a $130,000 loan to acquitted kidnapper Anthony Kiritsis. Kiritsis is in a mental hospital pending commitment proceedings against him. He was found innocent by reason of insanity in the abduction of Richard Hall last February. Meridian Mortgage Co. Inc., headed by Hall's family, filed a "complaint on note and to foreclose mortgage" on property Kiritsis sought to develop into a shopping center on the city's west side.

Kiritsis, apparently unable to meet the March 1 mortgage deadline, took Hall hostage, claiming Hall had cheated him. Hall was finally released from the Kiritsis apartment after spending 63 hours holed up with a shotgun wired to his neck. After a jury acquitted Kiritsis, legal steps were taken to have him committed to a mental hospital. Kiritsis signed over the property to his brothers, Jimmie Kiritsis and George Urgo, as co-trustees. Both were named co-defendants in the suit, as were Chuck Dugger and Kenneth A. Sebree & Associates, Inc., architects.

Report KCIA agent may testify

A former South Korean CIA agent who defected two months ago is expected to reveal secret KCIA efforts to shape American foreign policy at a House International Relations subcommittee hearing Tuesday. Sources close to the panel said Monday the ex-agent and seven other witnesses on tap to testify will provide "the strongest evidence ever presented in public of foreign intelligence attempts to influence foreign policy and public opinion in this country."

"Some of it was clearly illegal," said one source. The subcommittee headed by Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., has been investigating virtually all aspects of relations between Seoul and Washington in a probe that began in 1975. It has focused increasingly on Korean CIA activity in the United States. Spokesman for the panel refused to identify any witnesses in advance, saying the names had to be kept secret for unspecified security reasons.

Fukuda reshuffles Japan cabinet

Prime minister Takeo Fukuda Monday reshuffled his 11-month-old cabinet in a sweeping move designed to overcome Japan's mounting economic crisis at home and abroad. The 72-year-old prime minister replaced all cabinet ministers except Justice Minister Mitsuo Setoyama and created two new posts to cope with the domestic economy, hit by recession, and mounting overseas pressure to reduce the nation's swollen trade surplus.

In announcing a cabinet reshuffle in a nationally-televised news conference Saturday, Fukuda said the shakeup is designed to cope with "the gravest (economic) situation" since World War II. Fukuda said Monday his new cabinet "with a firm resolve, will do its best in stabilizing the national economy and make renewed efforts toward ensuring the cooperation and development of the international community of nations."

Portugal Socialists offered chance

The middle-of-the-road Social Democrats offered the Socialist minority government a chance for survival in Lisbon, Portugal, Monday but said they doubted Prime Minister Marid Soares would accept. The offer came in the form of a call for the Socialists to agree to a common platform with the Centrists and the conservative Center Democrats short of a formal coalition. The Social Democrats said this offer would enable the Socialists to continue governing alone, but would exclude them from reaching a separate arrangement with the Communists.

Harrier jet damaged in Okinawa

A vertical takeoff jet was damaged Monday during a landing on Okinawa, making the 27th time one of the British-made planes has crashed since the Marine Corps started using them in 1971, the Pentagon announced Monday. A Marine spokesman said the plane, an AV-8A Harrier, was on a routine training operation when the accident occurred. "When it made a landing at Kadena Air Force base on Okinawa, it came in pretty hard and broke the landing gear," the spokesman said. "there was some structural damage, but as to the extent, that's being determined now." The spokesman said the plane's pilot, 1st Lt. C.A. Eaton, suffered only minor bruises.

Doctor not told Biko 'urgent' case

The last doctor to see Steve Biko alive said Monday that no one told him his patient was "an urgent case." Dr. Andries van Zyl said in Pretoria, S. Africa he examined Biko a few hours before the Black nationalist leader died in a Pretoria jail cell Sept. 12 and found him to be a "sick, sick man." Biko, 30, the founder of South Africa's black consciousness movement, was the 20th detainee to die in police custody in the past nine months. Police witnesses have denied any wrongdoing on their part and maintain they thought Biko was feigning illness before he died.

Arson suspected in blaze at Des Plaines trailer

Mount Prospect fire investigators suspect arson as the cause of the blaze that destroyed the mobile home of an 18-year-old Des Plaines mother and her 19-month-old son Saturday.

Fire officials Monday would give no details on the investigation, but said they discovered "suspicious circumstances" surrounding the incident. The investigation is continuing.

The trailer was unoccupied when it caught fire at about 10:30 a.m. Saturday, but it left Marilyn Newton and her son Danny homeless. They are staying with friends in the trailer park.

Fire investigators said they collected samples from the burned out trailer, and have interviewed numerous persons connected with the case.

The fire gutted the trailer in less than 10 minutes, witnesses said.

PHIL LEHMAN, the owner of the trailer park at 500 W. Touhy Ave., Des Plaines, offered to tow the trailer out of the park for free for the young woman, but he said he can't find anyone willing to take it.

"Some rebuilders take them for the frame," said Lehman, "but I talked to one who looked at it and he said he had more than he can handle."

Mrs. Newton said she had no insurance on the trailer.

Saturday's fire was another link in a chain of bad luck for Mrs. Newton. Her mother died Nov. 14, and in the confusion Mrs. Newton failed to pay the insurance premium, and the policy lapsed. She has received some clothing from the Salvation Army, and has been working for about six weeks at the warehouse for Claire's Boutiques Inc. in Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. Newton is staying temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Thornsberry, who live in a mobile home in the same park. Mrs. Newton was there visiting Saturday when the fire broke out.

Rep. Chapman wins lawmaker award

State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has received a "Best Legislator" award from the Illinois Assn. of Student Governments.

Dennis L. Adamczyk, student body president of Southern Illinois University and coordinator of the association's recent convention, said Mrs Chapman was one of 12 legislators chosen for educational and student-oriented issues.

Mrs. Chapman is a member of the House Education Committee, a former member of the Higher Education Committee and was a sponsor of the Illinois Public Junior College Act.

Don't Confuse NaturSlim with Liquid Protein!!!

NaturSlim is not a liquid protein diet.

All the recent controversy over the predigested liquid protein "fasting" diets has caused confusion in many people's minds. Those products are not just powdered protein in liquid form. They are, chemically and nutritionally, an entirely different thing from the NaturSlim Program.

NaturSlim is a nutritional aid to healthful weight reduction.

The NaturSlim Program is recommended as a nutritionally sound, well-balanced, sensible way to help you slim down at a realistic pace . . . without isolating yourself from the foods you need every day to maintain good health.

NaturSlim is not a protein-sparing fast.

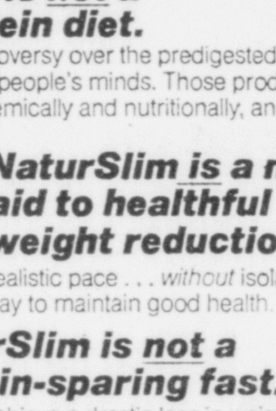

Many people have been using the predigested liquid proteins as their only food source for extended periods in order to achieve a drastic loss in weight. Common sense alone would suggest that such extreme fasting cannot be in the best interests of good health.

NaturSlim is recommended with a well-balanced meal every day.

The NaturSlim Program suggests that you not abstain from eating entirely. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day including salad, meat, vegetable, etc. (even bread!). Starving your body of the fiber and fresh-food nutrients you need is not a sensible way to lose weight.

NaturSlim is not a predigested animal protein formula.

The liquid proteins are typically a dark syrupy liquid, heavily laced with artificial flavoring to conceal the otherwise horrid taste of the uncured cowhide and beef tendon from which their low-quality protein (collagen) is derived.

Powder.
And proud of it!

NaturSlim is a high-quality, natural, vegetable protein food.

NaturSlim is a pure whole protein of superior nutritional value, containing a blended combination of Soya Protein, Casein, Lactalbumin, Lecithin and Brewers Yeast.

NaturSlim. Still sensible and still #1!

Skinner files suit to postpone RTA gas tax

WOODSTOCK, Ill. (UPI) — State Rep. Cal Skinner Jr., Monday filed suit in McHenry County Circuit Court asking that the Regional Transportation Authority be prevented from collecting its new 5 per cent gas tax until the state Supreme Court rules on the levy's validity.

A hearing was scheduled for Tuesday before Circuit Court Judge Roland Herrmann.

The RTA board voted last summer to impose the tax Oct. 1. Difficulty in meshing state and local tax collection machinery delayed implementation, however, and the starting date later was set for Dec. 1.

THE TAX IS expected to add about 2.5 cents to the cost of a gallon of gas sold in the six-county RTA area. The money collected through the tax must be spent in the county where it is collected.

Skinner's original suit challenging the tax argued one of the board members who voted for it was not qualified to vote. That suit is pending before the Illinois Supreme Court.

"What makes the RTA think it's superior to the Supreme Court?" Skinner asked.

If the RTA begins collecting the tax and the court later invalidates it, there will be no way to return the money improperly collected, he said.

Skinner cited an earlier court action invalidating part of the state cigarette tax collection procedure and mandating refund of money collected illegally. In that case, smokers were asked to estimate how many packs of cigaretes they smoked during the time period in question and were reimbursed on the basis of that estimate.

Rackets-busting McClellan dies at 81

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., whose relentless pursuit of organized crime in the 1950s and 1960s was instrumental in sending Teamster bosses James Hoffa and Dave Beck to prison, died Sunday night. He was 81.

McClellan's death came only one week after he formally announced he would retire at the end of his present term in the Senate, where he was the second-ranking member in seniority behind Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss.

McClellan apparently died while he was asleep in his Little Rock apartment. His wife, Norma, said he failed to respond when she attempted to awaken him Monday morning.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Immanuel Baptist Church in Little Rock.

SEN. JOHN McCLELLAN

McCLELLAN, WHO WAS chairman of the Subcommittee at the time he achieved national fame with investigations of labor racketeering, was chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and ranking Democrat on the Judiciary Committee at his death.

He had been in failing health in recent months and had a pacemaker implanted in his chest earlier this year.

Had he served to the end of his term, Jan. 3, 1978, he would have completed a tenure surpassed by only four other senators in history. McClellan served in the senate 36 years and before that in the House four years.

"There is a proper time to aspire, a time to achieve and a time to retire," McClellan told a news conference packed with family and friends last week. All told, he had been in public service 50 years, including four years as a prosecuting attorney and six years as Malvern, Ark., city attorney before running for Congress.

"TO EVERYTHING there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven," he quoted from the Bible, and then switched to paraphrase the Stephen Foster ballad, "Uncle Ned":

"I hang up the fiddle and the bow of political ambition . . . I shall lay down the shovel and the hoe of all public responsibilities."

Gov. David Pryor, whom McClellan defeated in a bitter battle over his Senate seat in 1972, said in an official statement, "The people of Arkansas have lost a friend and defender in Sen. McClellan. He was a strong advocate and a tireless worker for those principles he espoused. It is unlikely that we shall see a man of his stature again."

Pryor also said he would not have himself appointed to fill the remainder of McClellan's term and "at the appropriate time" will name the senator's successor. Pryor, among others, already was considering running for McClellan's seat before his death.

McClellan said in 1977 that campaign would be his last. Pryor forced him into a runoff at the time, which traditionally has spelled disaster for incumbent politicians in Arkansas. But McClellan — 76 then — came on strong, campaigning vigorously across the state to defeat Pryor by a solid margin.

McClellan was born Feb. 26, 1896, on a poor farm near Sheridan in Grant County, Ark. His mother named him after the Democratic congressman in the family's district, John Little, who responded by sending his namesake $5.

THE MONEY WAS used to purchase a Bible in which John McClellan learned to read. He was an excellent public school student and read law with a local attorney. At age 17 he was licensed as a lawyer, the youngest in Arkansas history.

"There were three credos I was taught to believe in as a young man," McClellan often said at campaign gatherings in later years — "baptism by immersion, paying your just debts and saving your own seed potatoes."

His role as the rackets-busting chairman of the Senate committee lifted him from being an obscure Southern senator to national prominence. Robert Kennedy was his chief counsel and then-Sen. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass., was a committee member.

McClellan was staunchly conservative by any standards, but got on well with the Kennedys. "I always liked Bobby Kennedy," McClellan recalled years later. "He was a hard worker, always came prepared, always did his homework."

McClellan himself was a grim and flinty prosecutor. He was criticized for rough handling of witnesses but he was inexhaustible and unswerving in his pursuit of justice as he saw it.

In an interview four years ago, he talked with a reporter on his last campaign with characteristic bluntness: "I am not afraid to lose. There is no sense in rushing if you are afraid to lose. Arkansas has been good to me. I can never repay the people for what they have done for me. No, that doesn't bother me. I'll sleep like a baby either way afterwards."

ANY REGRETS about life? Would he have done any of it differentiy? "I would have gone to college," he said. "I regret that, but the money wasn't there. Oh, there are a few things in a fellow's life he may wish he had done in a different way . . . but it's been good."

There was little more to say about it. The often dour prosecutor, the steer-tough Biblical enemy of the unjust, was not a man given to sentimental remembrances.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters — Doris McClellan who lives in Panama and Mrs. Mary Alice McDermott of Little Rock. He was the father of three sons, all of whom preceded him in death.

Strong Senate panels face change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The death of Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., opens the way to a major reshuffling of Senate chairmanships and a chance for Democrats to give a more liberal tinge to at least two powerful committees.

McClellan's death reduces the ranks of "Old Guard" southerners to a small though still powerful group.

But it puts in line for the chairmanship of the most powerful and prestigious committee — Appropriations — Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., who is more liberal than McClellan.

HE WOULD BE the first liberal and the first non-southerner to head the committee since the late Sen. Carl Hapden of Arizona retired in January 1969.

To take over chairmanship of Appropriations, Magnuson will have to surrender the top spot on the Commerce Committee which under him turned out consumer legislation on an almost assembly-line basis. Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., will succeed Magnuson.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., will step up to take over as chairman of the Rules Committee, now headed by Cannon. Once considered strictly a housekeeping committee, it has in recent years become the panel in the forefront of election reforms.

McClellan's death also leaves a vacancy on the Judiciary Committee where he was chairman of the subcommittee dealing with anti-crime legislation.

THE COMMITTEE is now evenly split between liberals and conservatives with Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd considered a swing vote. The Democrats could strengthen the liberal position on the panel by appointing a liberal or moderate to succeed McClellan.

Tributes to McClellan, who ranked second in Senate seniority to Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., started shortly after word reached Capitol Hill of his death, although most of his colleagues were out of the city.

He was praised both by his allies and adversaries of his since since he enterd Congress 42 years ago.

Byrd called McClellan "a man of vision, who authored and guided legislation to make our country a better place to live.

"IN THE TRUEST sense of the word, John McClellan was a leader of men, the U.S. Senate, his native Arkansas and the nation," Byrd added. "His active and complete life should be an example for men and women to strive to emulate."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said McClellan stood as an example "of the finest American tradition of service to the public" and Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., praised him for "his high degree of honor and that everyone knew that under all circumstances his word was his bond."

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said McClellan's death was "a loss to the country" and Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., called him a "diligent and effective legislator."

20,000 estimated dead after Indian cyclone

VIJAYAWADA, India (UPI) — An estimated 20,000 persons were killed and more than 2 million were left homeless in the Nov. 19 cyclone and tidal wave that devastated India's Andhra Pradesh state, the Indian national news agency Samachar said Monday.

The cyclone also destroyed crops worth an estimated $300 million in the stricken area along the Bay of Bengal, Samachar said.

The Indian Army was concentrating its efforts on burying those killed by the storm to prevent outbreaks of disease.

India's ruling Janata Party urged that the Army Corps of Engineers be used to help rebuild thousands of new homes for cyclone victims.

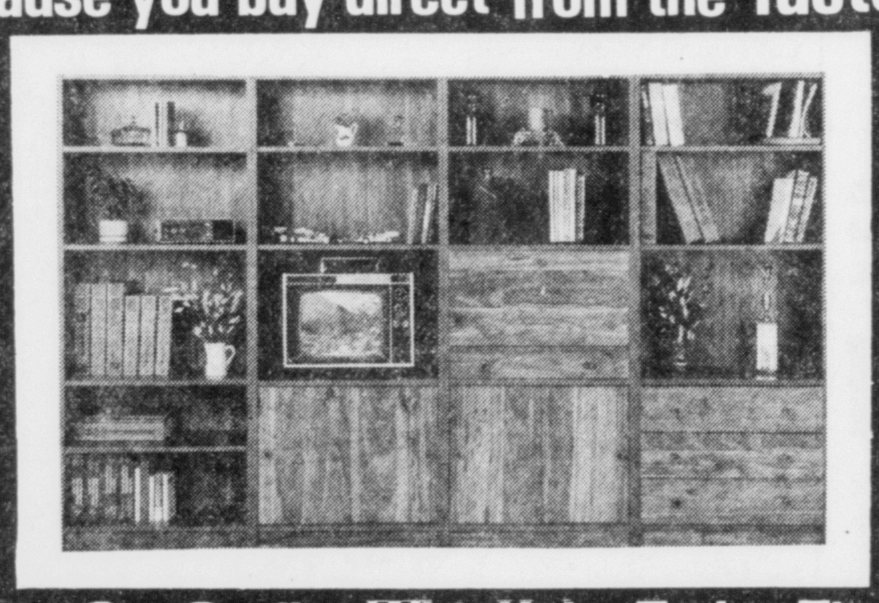

Soldiers started helping to dispose of the bodies of persons and carcasses of animals, disinfect water supplies, clear debris from destroyed villages and help doctors inoculate survivors against cholera.

Although state and central government officials have insisted that the rescue and relief should not be bogged down in politics, there has been bickering between state government officials.

A Buffalo Grove family plans to build a new home on this vacant lot amid nearly 100 year old homes on the Near West Side.

Suburban family ready to go back to bright lights

by THOMAS J. MOORE

Nicholas Alex always imagined himself living in a house with a lot of open land around it.

Growing up on the crowded West Side of Chicago, Alex said he thought it would be nice to live in the country. He realized part of that dream when he moved to Buffalo Grove eight years ago.

He still can hear cows and roosters on occasional summer mornings, but the area around his Strathmore Lake County home is becoming built up and crowded. He wants to go back to the city.

"WE LIKE IT HERE, it's just that it's an exciting opportunity," he said of his plans to go back to the W. Jackson Boulevard neighborhood he left 14 years ago.

"It's an opportunity that has to be seized," said his wife, Linda, adding that the family is thankful to have the choice.

Alex said he plans to build a new home in the city on a lot at 1522 W. Jackson Blvd., near the center of the block designated a city landmark because of its history and architecture.

Whether the new house will be a replica of the surrounding homes built nearly 100 years ago or one of modern design has not been decided. But Alex said he will hire an architect to design a structure compatible with the other buildings on the block.

He said he will seek the endorsement of the neighborhood association and the city commission on historical and architectural landmarks before he builds anything.

THE LOT IS vacant now, except for a flagpole erected by a former police captain after the house that stood there burned in the late 1930s. It is surrounded by the townhomes and row houses of the upper middle class of the 1880s.

Alex said he knows it would be nearly impossible to duplicate the original home on the site and even if craftsmen who can make the fine woodwork and masonry can be found, it probably would cost a fortune.

Alex said the move from a low-crime, affluent suburb with good schools to a downtown location is a big step and a hard decision to make.

The neighborhood, which had begun to deteriorate by 1900, became a pocket of urban blight during this century, according to the Chicago Landmark Commission. Much of the area was cleared as part of the city's urban renewal program leaving the 1500 block of W. Jackson as one of the few residential streets in the area.

A REHABILITATION program started about three years ago by new and old property owners has made the neighborhood more attractive, safer and a better investment, Alex said. The Whitney Young Magnet School is a block away and new housing is planned for the block south to form a buffer between the historic homes and the Eisenhower Expressway.

Alex said he believes it will be less expensive to live in the city. Taxes in the neighborhood are lower than he pays now and the savings on gasoline will be considerable.

"Momma has to drive everywhere." said Mrs. Alex, who grew up in Chicago and never drove a car until the family moved to Buffalo Grove. She said everywhere she or one of the three children wants to go usually can be reached only by car.

Not only does Mrs. Alex think there will be more for her family to do in town, but they can get to it more easily.

"THERE'S A mystique about the city — Chinatown, Greektown, the Loop and the lake — everything is bustling," she said.

"It's all there and it's all accessible," Mrs. Alex said.

In addition to the availability of recreational and cultural opportunities, Alex said he likes the feeling of belonging to a neighborhood that just doesn't exist where he lives now.

"There's a closeness that isn't there in the suburbs," he said.

"In the summer you can sit on your porch and talk to your neighbors," he said of city life. That kind of activity is difficult in the suburbs because of a lack of porches and the transient nature of the community.

THE ALEX FAMILY has some long-time friends in Buffalo Grove and will miss them when they move but all the members of the family see advantages in establishing a new home in the city.

Johnny Alex, 14, said most of his friends are in Buffalo Grove but the idea of moving is "pretty neat." There are more places to go that are accessible in the city, he said.

"There are more girls too," he said.

Beth Alex, 15, said she thinks she will be able to keep busy living in the city and looks forward to an exciting array of activities. She said she also believes city living will remove the pressure to have a car of her own.

Unlike other families who renovate older homes or move to areas formerly considered undesirable, the Alexes don't consider themselves urban pioneers.

ALTHOUGH HE has been away for 14 years, Alex said he still considers the neighborhood his home. His brother, Gus, never left.

"We've been there longer than them," Alex said, referring to those who do claim the pioneer designation.

"We're part of the Indians, you might say," he said.

The Alex family finds common ground with the newer homeowners in the area in a commitment to the city and a desire to preserve the architectural integrity of the block.

Alex, an electrician, spends his free Saturdays refurbishing an apartment building he owns on the block. A vacant apartment in the building served the family last year as headquarters for a vacation spent getting to know the city again.

There is a lot to be done before Alex is ready to move. He said he doesn't know exactly when he will give up the suburban life for the urban environment.

"It could be one or two years," he said. "We want to do it right even if it is a little slower."

THE NICHOLAS ALEX family will give up this two-story home in Buffalo Grove with its large lot to return to city living on the historic 1500 block of W. Jackson Boulevard in Chicago.

NICHOLAS AND LINDA Alex stand in front of an empty lot at 1520 W. Jackson Blvd. that will be their home someday. The Alex family, including three children, plans to build a new home between the Victorian-era houses being restored in the neighborhood where Alex grew up. The flagpole was placed there after the original house burned in the 1930s.

Old neighborhoods see middle class renaissance

"There is not an attractive residential street on the West Side except Ashland Avenue. Jackson Boulevard and Washington Boulevard are llined with mediocre houses and flat buildings."

That's what Frank W. Smith of the Corn Exchange Bank said about the West Side of Chicago in a Sept. 11, 1899 newspaper article. Now, homes in that area and other older neighborhoods in Chicago are being revitalized as part of a renaissance that is drawing people from the suburbs while adding new life to the city.

The rebirth of older Chicago neighborhoods is creating middle-class housing in areas of former urban blight.

"A lot of people are buying older houses and putting them back in livable condition," said Roy Forrey, a writer for the Commission on Chicago Historical and Architectural Landmarks. "It's very positive for the future of the city."

HE SAID the migration of the middle class back to the city is a reversal of the past trend. Information on the number of families doing it has not been compiled.

One of the neighborhoods where older homes are being renovated is the 1500 block of W. Jackson Boulevard.

The block is just about all that is left of the once fashionable West Side residential area north of Congress Parkway around Ashland Avenue.

Despite Smith's opinion in 1899, the block was designated a city landmark a year ago because it represents four distinct styles of architecture that graced Chicago during the late 19th century but are disappearing today.

THE AREA IS attracting those who want to stay in the city and some who want to return. Nicholas Alex of Buffalo Grove who grew up in the area, plans to build a new house on a vacant lot on the block.

Phillip Krone, president of the Benjamin F. Ferguson Assn., the neighborhood homeowners group, said people are attracted to the block for various reasons, but it is predominately a commitment to city living.

Doctors like living there because it is near a medical center complex, others because it is near the Loop and transportation but most like the size and quality of the houses.

The first wave of buyers had the added attraction of a reasonable price, Krone said. Those early purchasers were able to buy the large houses for between $10,000 and $28,000, Krone said. Because it could affect the assessment of the houses for property taxes, he declined to say how much it cost to renovate the houses.

KRONE AND others banded together about four years ago to try to save the block from the fate of other area buildings. Urban renewal took its toll on the Near West Side and left the block a residential island surrounded by vacant lots, industrial buildings, union halls and the new Whitney Young Magnet School.

Krone, who acts as an adviser to various city and state politicians, said he knew that the surrounding dilapidated buildings would be torn down so he and others set out to save the block as a residential area.

He said former Mayor Richard J. Daley and Mayor Michael A. Bilandic supported the efforts of the property owners and helped get the landmark designation. Being a landmark protects the block from city or state projects that would destroy the buildings.

The Benjamin Ferguson Assn., named for a lumber magnate who lived on the block in the last century and donated money to build a wing to the Art Institute, has succeeded in delivering the block from blight and the wrecking ball while creating a new neighborhood in the city.

Woman killed as train rams auto then derails

A 36-year-old Libertyville woman was killed Monday when her car was rammed by a speeding Milwaukee Road commuter train, which dragged the vehicle 200 yards down the tracks and then derailed.

Leona Poehler was killed instantly when the five-car train struck her car broadside near the crossing at St. Mary's Road, about a half mile north of Ill. Rte. 176 in Libertyville. None of the train's passengers were reported injured.

The impact of collision sliced the car in half, sending parts of the hood and engine into a nearby utility pole, police said.

LAKE COUNTY Sheriff's police said the accident may have resulted from a short power failure in the area that silenced the signal bells and darkened lights at the track crossing.

Police said they will begin investigating the cause of the crash and the power failure today.

A spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Company's Northbrook headquarters Monday night confirmed the power outage, but said he did not know if it affected electrical equipment in the area of the accident.

"Even if the power failure did occur in the area, it might not have come until after the accident," said the Commonwealth spokesman, who wished to remain anonymous.

POLICE SAID the collision also caused the woman's car to knock over a signal near the crossing and at least two commuter cars to derail. The mother of two children was trapped for an hour before paramedics were able to remove her body from the wreck, police said.

None of the 30 passengers on the train was hurt, but the engineer, Edward Ambacher of Ingleside, sustained a minor knee injury, police said.

Police said the train was traveling from Fox Lake to Chicago when it collided with Mrs. Poehler's northbound car. Police said the St. Mary's Road crossing is in a rural section of Libertyville and has no crossing gates.

Police directed traffic around the accident scene until the derailed cars were removed at 6 p.m.

Libertyville Police Chief Jack Reitman said three area men were killed in a similar accident five years ago at the same crossing. Firefighters believe that accident resulted after the crossing signals had become packed with snow and were not visible.

PARAMEDICS, above, surround the wreckage of a car destroyed Monday by a Milwaukee Road commuter train in Libertyville, and, right, remove the body of Leona Poehler, about 36, of Libertyville, who was killed in the accident. The train's impact hurled parts of the car's hood and engine into a utility pole, below.

Harper search panel to be named

A search committee for a new Harper College president may be named within the next few weeks, the Harper Board of Trustees announced Monday night.

The committee, to be composed of representatives from the college faculty, administration, students, community and other constituencies, will help the board seek a replacement for Robert E. Lahti, Harper's founding president.

Lahti resigned Nov. 10 after the board agreed to pay him more than $75,000 to break his contract because of a lack of confidence in his administration. Lahti since has accepted a six-month appointment as president of the Community Colleges of Denver.

JOSEPH F. KAUFFMAN, a University of Wisconsin professor, hired by the board to advise in the selection process, Monday said it will be June, at the earliest, before Harper has a new president. He named September as the "outside date" for the new president to assume his duties.

The author of a handbook on the selection of college and university presidents, Kauffman said he envisioned a search committee as a group to "offer comments on the qualifications the board wishes to use (in seeking a new president), search nationally for all possible candidates, screen them, come up with a list of five to eight persons and turn it over to the board."

The board must make the final decision and Kauffman has advised one or two board members to sit on the committee.

THE BOARD WILL decide the committee's composition and selection method in the next few weeks, board chairwoman Shirley Munson said.

A citizens group formed several weeks ago because of skepticism about the board's governing abilities has requested representation on the search committee. No decision has been made on the request of the group, which is headed by former Wheeling Village Trustee Otis Hedlund and is composed primarily of politically active citizens.

The board will be developing a list of qualifications for the presidential candidate with the help of Kauffman, who was hired for "under $300," Mrs. Munson said.

Democratic power struggle

Hynes slated for county assessor

by KURT BAER

State Senate Pres. Thomas C. Hynes, D-Chicago, was slated by the Democratic Central Committee Monday to run for the office of Cook County assessor, apparently ending one of the most intense party power struggles in recent years.

Hynes' principal challenger, State Rep. Thaddeus "Ted" Lechowicz, D-Chicago, conceded before the final slatemaking vote that he had been boxed out of the nomination by Irish-American committeemen who were adament about holding on to the powerful assessor's office. Lechowicz's strong support was based among Polish-American committeemen.

"I think it was wrong for Mr. (P. J. 'Parky') Cullerton to have annointed Tom Tully as assessor and it is wrong to have Tully annoint Mr. Hynes. The people of Cook County should have a choice," said Lechowicz, state House assistant majority leader, who nonetheless promised full support for Hynes.

WHEELING-BUFFALO Grove School Dist. 21 board member Barbara Strom Farr and Lynn Williams, a Winnetka millionaire and long-time gadfly in Democratic circles, were among six candidates picked to run for suburban seats on the Cook County board.

Barbara Farr

Lynn Williams

Mrs. Farr, 51, of 60 E. Jeffrey Ave., Wheeling, said, "the many Democrats in suburban Cook County deserve a county commissioner who represents them." All of the incumbent suburban commissioners are Republicans.

A resident of Wheeling for 21 years, Mrs. Farr is a former teacher, past president of the Wheeling Junior Woman's Club and now works Merrill Lynch Relocation Management, Inc., Des Plaines. She is a precinct captain in the Wheeling Township Regular Organization.

WILLIAMS, 68, clashed often with late Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley over the operation of the Cook County organization and it was with obvious emotion that Williams told the party bosses, "I am as astonished as you are to find myself here."

Williams was endorsed unanimously by the 30 suburban Township committeemen who earlier in the day had heard him warn he would "say what I believe" during the campaign.

"You might agree with me on most matters. I hope you would but you would have to take your chances in that regard," said the maverick Williams. "I believe any credibility I might have as a candidate stems from the habit of speaking my mind."

Williams said that win or lose, "I will try to have a good many people in the suburbs think better of the Democratic Party."

HE SAID SUBURBS face the danger of overcrowding and he proposed that county funds be used to buy land that would provide a "green belt" buffer zone around existing suburbs.

He also suggested that a county-operated garbage disposal center might be built to solve suburban trash disposal problems.

Also slated to run for suburban commissioner were: James Hilliard, 40, an attorney from Morton Grove; William J. Bailey, mayor of Palos Heights; Miles F. Krejci, Lyons; and Thomas J. Ryan, an attorney from Oak Forest.

Other Democrats slated Monday were George W. Dunne, county board president; Edward J. Rosewell, county treasurer; Stanley T. Kusper, Jr., county clerk; Richard J. Martwick, county superintendent of schools; Harry H. Semrow and Seymour Zaban, board of (tax) appeals; William A. Jaskula, Joanne H. Alter and Thomas S. Fuller, metropolitan sanitary district commissioners.

MRS. ALTER'S NOMINATION was in doubt for a time Monday as committeemen met behind closed doors to hammer out the county slate. But when the public balloting was taken, she managed to hold on to party endorsement. She and Jaskula are incumbent MSD commissioners.

Democrats have not won a county board seat in the suburbs in decades, although the party currently controls all 10 seats on the county board from Chicago.

Instant replay of murder trial OKd

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Television viewers can see an "instant replay" of the trial of one of two men accused of killing eccentric heiress Marjorie Jackson during a multi-million dollar robbery last spring, a judge ruled Monday.

Marion County Judge John Wilson Jr. rejected objections by defense attorneys to his decision allowing Indianapolis TV stations to connect recording equipment to a videotape system in his courtroom.

The stations hooked up their machinery Monday as jury selection started for the trial of Howard Willard, 38, Mooresville, Ind., the alleged ringleader of a gang that stole $4 million from Mrs. Jackson's home.

Willard is charged on eight counts of murder, burglary, armed robbery, arson and conspiracy.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY James Voyles Jr. of Indianapolis said permitting public release of the tapes would create prejudice against Willard.

Wilson defended the release of his tapes once a jury was sequestered on grounds no one on the panel would see the TV replays. He said the system is a permanent part of his courtroom, generally used for educational purposes.

The judge, however, instructed the television stations to refrain from using any audio portion of the tapes while only a portion of the jury was seated.

Selection of the 12 persons on the panel was expected to be completed today, with testimony to start Wednesday.

The list of prosecution witnesses included Marjorie Pollitt, 49, Mooresville, Willard's former wife, listed as an unindicted co-conspirator.

The charges said Mrs. Jackson, heiress of the Standard Grocery Store fortune, was killed May 4 during a burglary. Her body was discovered by firefighters who went to the Jackson estate on May 7 to put out a blaze investigators later said was arson.

Authorities found $5 million stuffed in trash cans and suitcases at the ranch-style home, and recovered another $4 million from the suspects.

Manuel Lee Robinson, 29, Indianapolis, also was charged with the slaying. He and Willard were granted separate trials.

14 college kids object of snowy mountain search

JAY, Vt. (UPI) — State troopers searched in vain Monday for 14 Montreal college students who went hiking on rugged 3,800-foot Jay Peak and were caught in a weekend snowstorm.

Search parties, hampered by snow flurries and cloudy skies, abandoned the search at dusk. Police spokesmen said they plan to use a spotter plane Tuesday if the weather clears in the mountainous area near the Canadian border.

The Dawson College students, aged 16 to 20, were equipped with camping equipment, food and medical supplies and were led by an experienced hiker, police said.

THE GROUP STARTED hiking up the north side of Jay Peak Friday. Search parties were organized when they failed to meet a bus late Sunday afternoon.

Spokesmen said about one foot of fresh snow fell since Saturday, and temperatures at the base of the mountain Monday ranged in the mid 20s.

Don Hall, director of student activities at the school, said "some of the students are well-equipped and some have had survival training.

"We assume that they did the right thing and decided to hole up, waiting for the snow to let up," Hall said in Montreal. "We understand there are log cabins and lean-tos along the trail they were supposed to be taking."

Some parents of the students have also left for the area to help in the search, Hall said. Names of the students were withheld.

Brian Gill, director of athletics at Dawson, also was heading a three-man team of experts en route to Jay Peak, Hall said.

Police cooperation good

Five Northwest suburban police departments engaged in an impressive display of cooperative police work last week in tracking down Michael T. McAndrew.

McAndrew, 19, has been charged with a series of robberies and kidnappings which occurred during the past few weeks. He was captured Wednesday in Bensenville by detectives from Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village who were going from bar to bar looking for him.

The police work which led up to the arrest was undramatic but excellent. Police from Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect, assisted by the Cook County Sheriff's police, had methodically followed up leads as they tracked McAndrew on his alleged one-man crime wave.

The degree of cooperation on this case is virtually unprecedented. While in the past, local police departments cooperated in the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, a task force dealing with drug traffic, MEG was formed through formal agreements and appropriations from village boards.

This manhunt resulted from an informal agreement between the police chiefs of the departments involved that they faced a potentially dangerous situation that no one department could spend enough time on.

As a result, the five departments contributed men to a special task force headed by Mount Prospect Sgt. Patrick Hallihan and Elk Grove Village Det. Raymond Rose. The task force's mission — catch the person responsible for the series of armed robberies and kidnappings before someone got killed.

The task was accomplished with apparently little inter-departmental rivalry. One police chief has called the effort a kind of "mutual aid," reminding us of the agreements between area fire departments which are used in case of major fires.

Local police and municipal officials should take the example of this case to draw up a permanent structure for "mutual aid" in police cases. The area does not need a permanent task force, but departments should have the capability of working together when the need arises.

The example of this case is a good place to start.

Kinder home best historic museum

Time is running out as the Des Plaines City Council ponders what to do with its historical society museum.

The museum must be moved from its location at 777 Lee St. to make room for an expansion of a savings and loan association next door which owns the site. The savings and loan wants the property by the end of the year.

Recently the council's decision became even more complicated.

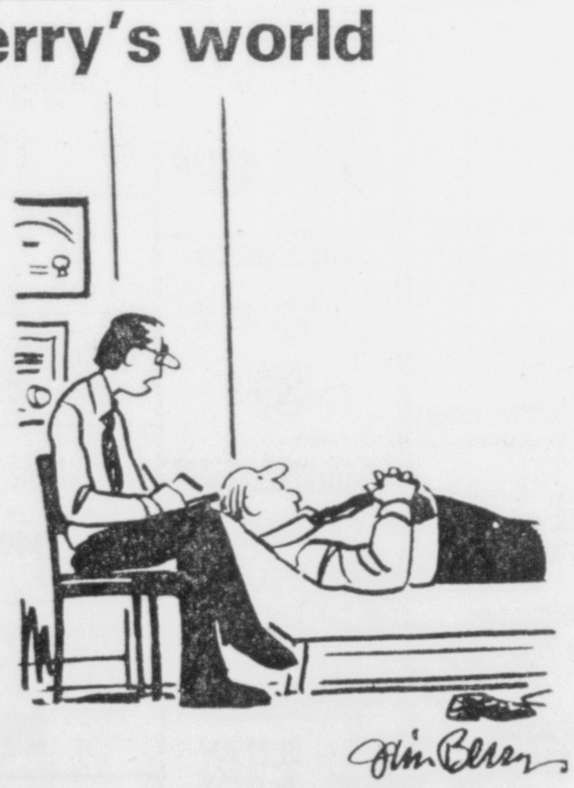

A group of residents asked aldermen to consider buying and renovating the old Socrates Rand-Clarence Earle home at River Road and Miner Street for the museum, rather than moving the old Kinder Home now used by the historical society. Those supporting the Rand-Earle site argue it is older and of greater historical significance. Those who favor the Kinder Home believed the price of moving the building, about $75,000, will be less than buying the Rand-Earle site.

The cost of acquiring the Rand-Earle site is unknown, but is likely to be much more than that required to move the Kinder House. Additionally, the Rand-Earle site would require renovation to convert it into a historical museum.

We believe both houses are of historical significance. The Kinder Home, however, has been the city's museum for some time now, and is an excellent example of yesteryear Des Plaines. It would be a shame to sacrifice it to the wrecking ball.

Much of the discussion of this issue has centered on the high cost of moving the Kinder House. But it is doubtful that the community is willing, at this point, to foot the much higher bill of buying and remodeling the Rand-Earle home when the city already has a perfectly good museum. Moving the Kinder Home to a new site seems more reasonable than starting from scratch with the Rand-Earle home.

I would like to agree wholeheartedly with your Nov. 16 editorial. I was shocked at the outcome of the trial for the six boys found guilty of trespassing and vandalism in the Gerald Schubring home. That they should get off with just probation is unbelievable.

Where do we as parents have a chance of teaching what we believe to be decent values to our children when they can see what happens if they "misbehave?" The damage done to that home was more than a little prank. It was coldblooded, knowledgeable and warp-minded destruction. It scares me that those boys could do this again with clear conscience.

They should have been made to pay in some way for their actions. Of course, I may somewhat understand their behavior, judging from the behavior of their respective parents. That not one of them sought to make some kind of apology and restitution to the Schubrings is also unbelievable. I realize that insurance paid for most of the repair work, etc., but some had to be paid out of their pockets. They should not have had to pay a penny. The shock of finding their home in such a state, plus having to live with the heartbreak and inconvenience, was more than enough for them to endure.

Let us try to help this world of ours by trying to instill decent values to those around us by teaching and setting good examples. There has to be an obvious difference between right and wrong, especially in a matter such as this.

I'm deeply disappointed and discouraged with Judge Walton's decision. We as parents need all the help we can get. He certainly let everyone down. I hope it rests well with him. It hasn't with me.

SOMETHING HAS GONE wrong, terribly wrong, with our society and values. And it shows in the breed of children we're raising. Vandalism brings no punishment (as we have witnessed in the courts). Every week you can pick up the paper and read of youths involved in various crimes — stealing from neighbors, buying liquor and then trying to out-run the police in a chase, shoplifting at various shopping centers, on and on.

Yes, something has gone wrong — terribly wrong, and it's getting worse. As parents, why are we so guilt-ridden that we have to excuse, alibi and even buy our kids out of trouble? Whatever happened to discipline and direction? Whatever happened to the sentence, "No you cannot?"

What do we owe our children? I can tell you what we don't owe them. We don't owe them every game or toy they see and want. We don't owe them our "taxi service" 'round the clock. (Whatever happened to children's feet?) We don't owe them fancy camps, music lessons, 10-speed bikes, motorcycles, cars (nor the use of ours when they desire it). We don't owe them college and an off-campus apartment, etc., etc.

We do owe our children certain things . . . like teaching them to restrain their wants and desires, like how to walk or ride a bike a short distance.

(No, honestly, children don't melt in the heat, cold, rain or snow!) We owe our children the self-esteem of working for things they want. More than that, we owe our children the lesson of being responsible for their actions, not "getting them off easy" when wrong is done.

'ERA won't speed women's rights'

Congress should not extend the deadline to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. The proponents of this issue have had more than ample time to present their case to the American people. They have failed to sway a majority and now they are in a panic.

In 1972, the ERA was given a very generous term of seven years to convince us of its worth. Everything imaginable, and then some, has been done to accomplish this goal. International Women's Year set its ratification as first priority, a program which is backed by $5 million of our taxes. They have done this in direct opposition to Public Law 94-167, Sec. 9, which states that "no funds authorized here under may be used for Lobbying activities." Direct pressure from the White House has been used to "influence" legislators. Now they propose to blackmail the city of Chicago, as well as major cities in other non-ratified states, through denial of convention funds. (Since the amount of money repeatedly stated has never been substantiated, one has to assume the figure was pulled out of thin air.)

American women and men do not want a unisex society, whether in actuality or "merely as law." It is already illegal to discriminate on account of sex in all areas of life. You cannot legislate attitude and, therefore, the process of change may be slow for some. But ERA will do nothing to speed up the process of law or make court cases less monumental.

There are inequities in today's world, but it is foolish to believe that one all-encompassing law will solve all our problems. The government cannot be all things to all people at all times. It would fail to be a democracy if it were. The ERA has had more than ample time to prove itself worthy of our support. In the final inning of the game it is ridiculous to extend the time to an additional seven "innings" just because your side is losing.

I WOULD LIKE TO ANSWER some of the questions of Cindie Welch, which appeared in the The Daily Herald, Nov. 18.

Before I do, I would like to ask why the paper saw fit to publish her age? If you would like to know mine, I am 44 and proud of it.

I doubt that Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly reads this publication, so I would like to say this: Where did you see a quote that, "Mrs. Schlafly preaches how the rest of us should devote our entire day and night taking care of our husbands, house and kids?" You go on to say, "But where is she?"

You are right, Cindie, she is not at home cooking and cleaning, so that should say something. She is doing all of this without ERA support. She has done it on her own initiative, with perhaps some support from her husband.

Women don't need ERA, if they are truly smart women. It is only the ones who can't make it on their own who want ERA to help them out.

And Cindie, there is a draft planned for women, ERA or not, if there is need to start drafting men again. Maybe you will be able to participate, if you don't grow up too soon.

You mention "that Mrs. Schlafly's lunatic ravings reach some women and because of these women's ignorance, they believe Mrs. Schlafly's preaching absolutely."

To that I say, she does reach some women, but that does not constitute a lunatic, anymore than those who are pushing for ERA.

Secondly, there are some women, like myself, who have never taken a public stand against ERA. Well, thanks to you, I have decided to write this letter. All that I am or hope to be is not due to ERA. I made it on my own! And believe me, I have an active interest in the future. After all, I have a husband and four children, three of which are grown and married. I also find time to pursue worthwhile activities to help my fellowman. Maybe you need ERA and its extension, Cindie, but I don't.

Bomb story hit

I wish to complain about the articles that appeared on the front page of The Daily Herald Wednesday, Nov. 15. You printed an article explaining how easy it is to get materials to make a bomb. By naming the materials and telling how easy it is to obtain these things, you only make it easy for more young people to experiment with such things. Your job is to help law enforcement, not to encourage more crime. I don't think it helped either to call the cops "helpless."

We're all trying to fight crime and your articles are not helping.

Jeanne Hillenmayer
Arlington Heights

(The articles on the ease with which materials for a pipe bomb can be obtained did not name all the materials needed for the process. Several key ingredients were not named, deliberately. The story focused on the fact that the ingredients are available, no questions asked, in Northwest suburban stores.)

This quiz for senators studying Panama treaty

Paul Greenberg

Good news for the more research-minded among us: any number of senators are planning fact-finding missions to Panama. Among the questions they might explore are these:

1. Who built and paid for the Panama Canal?

2. Under the terms of the proposed new treaty, how much would Panama pay the United States for the decades of investment in the canal? (a) the estimated $7 billion the United States paid for the canal over the years, (b) the current estimated value of the canal of about $12 billion, (c) only the original purchase price for title to the canal consisting of $10 million to Panama, $40 million to the French Canal Company, various millions to property owners in the canal and $25 million to the Republic of Colombia, (d) absolutely nothing at all. Hint: The correct answer, as aficionados of the State Department's negotiating techniques may have guessed, is (d).

3. IN RETURN FOR reliving the United States of the Panama Canal, the proposed treaties provide that Panama will receive (a) 30 cents per each net ton per vessel transiting the canal, to be adjusted after the first five years to reflect the United States wholesale price index for manufactured goods, (b) a rise in the annual American payment of $2.3 million to $10 million, or a total of $220 million over the next 22 years, (c) an additional annual amount of up to $10 million a year out of any canal surpluses, or another possible $220 million, (d) loans guaranteed by the United States taxpayer from the Export-Import Bank, the Agency for International Development, and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation totaling $345 million, (e) all of the above. (You guessed it, all of the above.)

4. Omar Torrijos, Panama's current leader, is (a) a tinpot dictator, (b) given to threats of "terror, guerrilla operations, and sabotage in a national liberation war" unless the canal is turned over to him, (c) self-described as opposed to introducing television in Panama because it might give his countrymen too many wrong ideas and keep them away from work, (d) all of the above (You guessed it again.) For extra points, explain how turning the canal over to the Torrijos regime will advance the cause of human rights.

5. HOW MANY VIOLENT changes of government has Panama undergone since it became an independent country (largely through American intervention) in 1903, and is an accurate count possible? What does this portend for the future of the Panama Canal should it be turned over to Panama under this treaty?

6. If, in the face of threats to sabotage the canal, the United States agrees to turn it over gradually to Panama's government, will the various free-lance terrorists in Panama who demand the canal now be discouraged from sabotaging it on their own? Or, is a bluebird green?

7. Since the canal will be declared neutral under this treaty, how could the United States legally prevent its use in time of war by enemies of this country? (Warning: This is a trick question, since it has no answer. But the question itself ought to be of some interest to a senator who is a member of the Armed Services Committee. So should the next one:)

8. SINCE THIS treaty forbids the United States from intervening in Panama, and since the Panama Canal becomes Panamanian territory under its terms, how could the United States exercise its treaty right to defend the canal without intervening in Panama? (Anyone who can answer the previous question should have no trouble with this one.)

9. An easier one: Would it be easier for the United States to defend the canal with or without the military bases in the Canal Zone that would have to be given up under this treaty?

10. WHICH PRESIDENTIAL candidate last year promised: "I would never give up complete control or practical control over the Panama Canal zone?" (Hint: His first name was Jimmy.)

Boorishness out as Age of the Gentleman dawns

The friend of a friend of a Harvard Square tailor once quoted the master stitcher as saying, "Changes in fashion anticipate changes in behavior." People, the yardgoods philosopher argued, try on a new costume first, and then get around to playing the part that fits.

The tailor's pattern seemed too neat at the time. But we are prepared to be converted. For a couple of seasons now men have been wearing three-piece suits and looking vaguely Edwardian. And here's the December Esquire, proclaiming the Age of the Gentleman.

"Mind your manners, America!" exhorts the cover. "You don't have to be a lout to be No. 1."

EVEN MORE extraordinary, though always mannerly, outbursts await the reader inside. "Maybe it is time for all of us to button up our shirts and clean up our mouths and learn a few things about civilized behavior," the editors begin. And after this humble bow they buckle down to the business of the new politesse.

A brief history of boors of the 1960s is provided as a horrible example of "Don't!" To mention names might be less than couth.

Rules of etiquette-reform are decorously sprinkled about. For instance: "One does not tell one's life story to strangers" — a rule which should hit a lot of parties pretty much like a vow of silence.

Of course Lord Chesterfield gets quoted: "It is from people's looking on usage of the world, attention, and a desire of pleasing as trifles, or not thinking of them at all, that so many young people are so awkward and ill-bred."

THE EDITORS OF what was once known as a "gent's magazine" have done a good job on short notice, after such a long layoff. But certain fundamentals still must be thought through if a renaissance of manners is to occur on more than the tailor's cutting table.

The first task of any New Etiquette is to find a way — a style — to make space gracefully for more and more persons in an ever-shrinking world. Being restricted in one's territory, in one's movements — being surrounded and perhaps finally smothered — this is one of the atavistic fears.

One of the purposes of manners is to assure our fellow beings that this is not our intention. By opening doors, pulling back chairs, begging pardon for the inadvertent bump, we are, in effect, performing a ritual of non-aggression — showing we honor one another's space.

AMERICANS IN particular are not good on space. They tend to go nasty when cramped. Check out any highway at commuting hours. No nation is worse at a queue or on a subway platform. We have depended on physical space to do the job for us. Everything — starting with a 3,000-mile-wide continent — has seemed to come oversized. But the buffer zones are disappearing. More and more we must accomplish by civilization — by arts of decorum — what used to be an environmental given.

The second great assignment of the New Etiquette will be to free us from an old either-or. The special moral dilemma of American manners has always been this: How can I be well-behaved without becoming a hypocrite?

In our latest cycle of boorishness — heralded, the tailor would point out, by farmer's jeans, lumberjack's shirts and cowboy boots — country candor has been the popular virtue: telling it like it is, letting it all hang out.

The mouth is made to snarl, the Boor Decade has implied. All smiles are craven. The truth invariably hurts.

HAS THE BOOR, at this brutalizing expense to himself and to others, achieved honesty? In her rather personal Esquire essay Francine du Plessix Gray doubts it, suggesting that the boor's punishing frankness toward others often has served to save him from being honest with himself.

The boor, in fact, is a parasite, living off other persons' restraint. The bull survives in the china shop precisely because it is a china shop rather than a jumgle. If manners did not operate somewhere, the boor would be clubbed down promptly by the boor next to him.

What any New Etiquette should announce is the end of the Age of Me, which our geopolitics tell us we can no longer afford. Cooperation — etiquette in working uniform — is the urgent virtue of the moment. At every point the imperative need of the ego runs into an equally imperative need: to coexist. And manners are the compact we must negotiate between the two needs if anybody is to survive, including boors.

Vain Maasai tribesmen juggle heritage, dignity

by RICHARD G. ZIMMERMAN

NAIROBI — One of their representatives to the Kenyan parliament recently threatened to resign if they, his constituents, didn't stop smearing themselves with red ochre and sauntering down the streets of Nairobi virtually naked.

"They" are the proud, slender, handsomely regal and vain Maasai, the famed lion-killing, cattle-rustling warriors of Kenya and Tanzania, whose tribal death knell was sounded 60 years ago in a now-classic study entitled "The Last of the Maasai."

Yet despite this pessimistically premature and moving epitaph and despite all the current political, social and economic pressures which often take the form of veiled racism on the part of Kenya's politically potent Kikuyu tribe, the Maasai stubbornly continue to exist today as one of the most visible and tourist-attracting tribes in all of East Africa.

EXIST? YES. But the Maasai nevertheless are still a growing embarrassment to their own political leaders, who the Maasai do not trust, and to the central Kenyan and Tanzanian governments, to which the Maasai pay as little attention as possible.

"They are arrogant, aggressive and ridiculously stubborn about accepting the fruits of economic development and enterprise — such as the plunder of wildlife on their well-stocked land," John Eames, who is writing a book on the Maasai, observes with bitter irony.

The piercing and progressive stretching of Maasai children's ear lobes has been labeled "disgraceful" by a Tanzanian official. The Maasai males' refusal often to wear much, if anything, under their traditional short, red cloaks has been termed "primitive" by official Kenyan government edict. And the Maasai "moran" — the young, unmarried warrior class — are considered to be a useless and pitiful anachronism in most of modern Africa.

EVEN OLDER MAASAI, after graduating from the moran class into settled married life during their middle 20s, refuse to breed and raise cattle for the greater good of the Kenyan economy, but rather as a measure of personal or clan wealth and prestige and for the mixture of curdled milk and fresh, whole blood which still serves as a staple of the Maasai diet.

Maasai cattle are as seldom slaughtered for meat as they are sold on the open market. And occasionally they are set to graze on the lawns of surprised and indignant Nairobi suburbanites when drought hits the vast and valuable lands set aside by treaty for the Maasai.

That Maasai elders control valuable land in a country hard pressed by a booming birth rate and a shortage of adequate grazing land for conventional herds is creating still another pressure on the Maasai. It is a pressure that the ambitious and sometimes avaricious Kikuyu, the tribe to which Kenya President Jomo Kenyatta belongs, are quite ready to take advantage of.

Terrorized for centuries past by marauding Maasai warriers, whose ancient, complex and rigid traditions include the belief that all the cattle in the world are theirs to appropriate at will, the Kikuyu are not exactly agonizing over the prospect that Maasai culture may vanish from the face of Africa.

FOR SOME KIKUYU, "progress" means doing to the Maasai by edict what they were never able to do to them on the field of battle.

Recently, on the pretext that large numbers of cattle were being rustled, Kenyatta's elite internal security police, the General Services Unit, rounded up and arrested a large group of moran. The GSLL, noted for respecting neither tribal traditions nor the niceties of Anglo-Saxon legal procedures, cut off the moran's elaborately braided hair, which had been carefully styled with animal fat and red ochre in a helmet-like fashion first described by the Greek historian Herodotus in the fifth century B.C.

To these and other insults and pressures the Maasai have reacted in a variety of ways, both noble and ignoble.

Unfortunately, most visitors observing Africa out of windows of tour buses see only the less noble aspects of what remains of Maasai culture. At the entrance to game parks and other tourist areas poorly dressed children, old Maasai women and even older Maasai men line the road, aggressively offering to pose for pictures (for a price, of course), selling beadwork made of gaudy plastic beads from Hong Kong rather than the traditional, softly hued, glass beads, or simply panhandling for a "shillingi" — a Kenyan shilling worth about 13 cents.

THESE SAD, CARDBOARD replicas of a proud people should remind tourists, especially Americans, of the unhappy fate of the American Indian.

But other serious researchers, such as Eames, have made the effort to travel deep into Maasailand to witness more authentic and wholesome vestiges of ancient Maasai culture, such as the "eunota," the joyous coming out of the moran into the state of junior elders. Like many Maasai traditions the eunota is not approved by the government, since so many Maasai ceremonies are equated with acts of civil disobedience such as cattle rustling or killing of lions with only a spear and shield for protection.

Eames was both impressed and distressed by what he saw: impressed by what had been preserved, distressed by what had been lost.

"THEY (THE SOON-TO-be-elders) wore the Roman chiton, but lengthened to cover bare buttocks and other embarrassements by order of the government," he later reported. "For this reason, the short-swords were not evident and sticks substituted for spears as the moran danced in their battle square formations."

Still, Eames found "it was an impressive military display . . . with battalions of moran stirring the dust with their undulating or high-jumping to the drumming cadence of a war chant."

Between these two extremes the mendicant peddlers and the anachronistic moran — many young Maasai males (women are still treated as chattel) are struggling to strike a dignified balance between their heritage and the demands of an emerging Africa.

Lopez Portillo brings calm to mired Mexican economy

by CAROL COOK

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Jose Lopez Portillo took office a year ago amid dark rumors of a coup and with Mexico mired in its worst economic crisis since the Revolution.

Today, despite a deep recession that means hardship for the poorest, Mexico seems to have regained the stability that has been its hallmark for the past four decades.

A kind of euphoria swept the nation when Lopez Portillo was sworn in Dec. 1, 1976. There was vast relief at the orderly transfer of power and at the departure of the controversial Luis Echeverria, who, rumor had it, was planning to stay in office through a "self-coup."

LOPEZ PORTILLO inherited a complex series of seemingly insurmountable economic, social and political problems.

There were strains in relations with the United States over Echeverria's attacks on foreign capital and his aggressive Third World policy, and with Israel over Mexico's "anti-Zionist" vote in the United Nations.

Echeverria's free-spending ways had quintupled the nation's public foreign debt in six years to a staggering $20 billion. Inflation was almost 30 per cent and there was a $3 billion trade deficit.

The peso was devalued for the first time in 22 years and $4 billion was taken out of the country in panic at the state of the economy.

CONFLICTS OVER land ownership in the north threatened to boil over into open peasant revolt. The business community was totally alienated from the public sector as a result of the former president's anti-capitalist rhetoric.

Economists advised Mexico to deflate the economy and resign itself to a recession before recovery could come. Social scientists predicted the resultant economic hardships would mean increasing social unrest.

The government opted for austerity, and the recession did come — with thousands of businesses going broke and hundreds of thousands of workers thrown out of work.

But aside from the kidnappings of several businessmen and a series of bombings on Independence Day in September, there has been little serious violence.

BOTH IN domestic and foreign affairs, Lopez Portillo adopted a policy of quiet reconciliation. He mended fences with the business community, calling for a truce among all sectors and an "Alliance for Production" to build up the economy.

Thanks to a unique agreement between the labor wing of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party and the government, wage hikes this year have been held to 10 to 12 per cent.

Curbs on government spending and limits on the money supply dictated by the International Monetary Fund have slowed the inflation rate to about 18 per cent. The trade deficit will be cut in half by the end of the year, thanks to increased earnings from oil and coffee and a huge cutback on imports of capital goods.

With an eye on opposition groups, his regime has undertaken political reform that should give more representation to minority parties and even get the Mexican Communist Party onto the ballot.

In foreign policy, Lopez Portillo eliminated Echeverria's Third World posture, concentrating instead on domestic problems. Relations with the United States improved, although the question of illegal migrant workers continues to defy solution and the Carter administration's amnesty plan is not to Mexico's liking.

THE PRESIDENT'S most important foreign policy move was renewal last March of diplomatic relations with Spain, broken when Franco won the Spanish Civil War in 1939. Lopez Portillo traveled to Spain for a state visit in October, and Spanish King Juan Carlos is scheduled to visit Mexico next year.

Carter may face challenge in '80

by GODFREY SPERLING JR.

A Democrat with strong ties ranging across the ideological spectrum — with George McGovern, Hubert Humphrey, Henry Jackson and also with the President — stated flatly the other day that Jimmy Carter would not be renominated "unless the economy gets well."

This highly regarded Democratic activist did not take the position that Carter should be replaced. On the contrary, he said the President was doing a "good job" and should be able to have another term if he wants it 'without having to fight tooth and nail to be renominated."

"But," he went on, "the President really has no constituency except the public at large. He has no constituency in Congress, among the governors, among the Democratic Party leaders, in labor or among the ethnic groups.

"THE ONLY people he can turn to for help are those voters he won over to his side during the election. And if the economoy continues to drag, he's going to lose this public support.

"And then Carter is going to be very vulnerable to being defeated by some Democrat who is able to rally congressional and party support — someone who would benefit from being a member in good standing within the longtime Democratic Party establishment."

This comment is not an isolated one: A growing number of Democrats both here in Washington and around the United States are beginning to talk, although still quietly, about the possibility of Carter facing a strong and perhaps successful challenge for the nomination in three pears.

Further — and this is a surprising development at a time when a president has been in office only a few months — several Democrats are beginning to sound like candidates for the nomination.

CALIFORNIA GOV. Jerry Brown is running — his disclaimers to the contrary.

Maverick Brown, who beat Carter in four out of four primaries in 1976, seems almost daily to be telling some reporter or columnist of his disinterest in the presidency. But these members of the media come away from their interviews with the conclusion that the young California governor already is panting for a chance to challenge Carter again.

Brown, like Carter, hopes to benefit from being an outsider to Washington. But he also expects to pick up strong support from youth, the academic community and from those on the McGovern-liberal side of the party.

Sen. Pat Moynihan also is visibly indicating his reluctance to run for the presidency. He's talking a lot in various parts of the United States on major issues and differing, to a degree, with Carter on the Mideast and nuclear arms reductions.

MOYNIHAN, A LIBERAL in his own right although a unique one at times, has caught the eye of many in the Jewish community and of Democrats who advocate a strong national defense.

Sen. Frank Church may well try for the presidency again, this time starting early. Rep. Morris Udall also isn't ruling out the possibility. And Sen. Alan Cranston is an early "dark horse."

There is also quiet talk among Democrats on the Hill and in the bureaucracy of somehow getting Vice-President Walter Mondale into a bid for the presidential nomination. Mondale certainly isn't encouraging this.

AND TED Kennedy? The Massachusetts senator doubtless will feel pressure once more to seek the presidency. But as of now the expectation is that he again will say "no."

All the political talk centering on the presidential nomination is unusual, simply because no one would expect such conversation as long as Carter is riding fairly high in the polls — as he is today.

But talk there is and it is growing. It could spell trouble for Carter — but only, as the earlier-quoted Democrat said, if the economy fails to rally.

Point-Counterpoint—friendly persuasion

The way James Kilpatrick and Shana Alexander go at each other in a verbal battle of wits and persuasion on the Point-Counterpoint segment of "60 Minutes," you'd think they were lifelong adversaries.

But, they aren't. The two veteran journalists have a healthy professional respect for one another. They just disagree a lot.

They make no bones about the fact they maintain a firm footing on opposite sides of almost any fence. Ms. Alexander affectionately calls Kilpatrick a "pretty crooked conservative" and Kilpatrick admits he can count on Ms. Alexander for a liberal, "misguided opinion on nearly everything."

Both have managed to make the transition from print to television commentary skillfully and the proof is in the pudding. Their fleeting three-minute tag on CBS' weekly news magazine is one of the most exhilarating, provocative, argument-launching pieces of television journalism on the air today.

JAMES KILPATRICK and SHANA ALEXANDER

A THEATRICAL, machine gun-styled debate over the Equal Rights Amendment starts off with Ms. Alexander making a case for "her" side to which Kilpatrick replies, "when you get to blubbering, kiddo, you just blubber off."

It's one of those good old fashioned knock out, drag down fights on a controversial issue. Once Kilpatrick and Ms. Alexander have had their say, thousands of American viewers continue the argument in their living rooms in a volume contest with the television set.

"That's just what we want people to do. It's meant to prompt reflection and I hope we leave many of our viewers arguing or saying, 'Boy, she really walloped him that time,' " said Kilpatrick from his Blue Ridge Mountains hamlet in Virginia.

"If we can get people talking about important issues like ERA or the neutron bomb then, in a very modest way, we are providing a public service," he said.

Oddly enough, the debates between Kilpatrick and Ms. Alexander are taped just days before they air in separate studios a few hundred miles apart.

"WE'VE REALLY become very good friends and we're very civil to each other," Kilpatrick said. "We talk by phone at the beginning of every week to discuss several topics and decide on one on which we sharply disagree."

Then, Kilpatrick said, "I do all my own research and then I get my belly up against the typewriter and put together a minute and a half piece that not only informs but makes an argument. That's a real challenge."

Kilpatrick and Ms. Alexander read their copy to each other over the phone before heading to separate studios in Washington, D.C. and New York to tape their portion of the show. The whole process takes about two or three days.

"It's important to understand that we're not actors," said Ms. Alexander from her Long Island, N.Y. office. "We're expressing all our own passions and beliefs. We never compromise by taking a stand we don't believe in."

The problem often comes in finding a topic or an aspect to a controversial issue worth debating. "I'm not certain there are 52 matters worth debating throughout the year that people really care about," she said.

KILPATRICK WRITES a syndicated political commentary column for the Washington Star and appars regularly on the lecture circuit. He is a newspaper man of 37 years who says the print medium remains the meat and potatoes of his life, but that television is a nice "dessert."

With the release of Kilpatrick's book of pastoral collections comes Ms. Alexander's autobiographical "Talking Woman." She has a long list of impressive credentials that include being the first female staff writer for Life Magazine, author of the celebrated column "The Feminine Eye," editor of McCall's Magazine, a contributing editor to Newsweek, a radio commentator on CBS' "Spectrum" series and author of a soon-to-be released book on Patricia Hearst.

"I enjoy doing point-counterpoint so much because where else could you get paid for getting your hair done each week and saying what you want?" Ms. Alexander said.

"When I auditioned for the job in 1975, it was just like a first kiss — I loved it. The spoken word is a different language from the written word, so it's still a challenge. And, of course, there is a novelty to it. I realized I could reach more people with what I was saying on the show than I could writing every day in a newspaper or magazine," she said.

KILPATRICK SAID he has learned to live with the celebrity status that comes with appearing weekly on one of television's most respected and highest rated shows.

He can't sit in airport terminal lobbies or restaurants anymore without being recognized. He does his best to avoid being regarded as a celebrity rather than a newsman.

"Sure, it's like being in show business once each week, but it's fun," Ms. Alexander said, taking an opposing view as would be expected.

Her father was a songwriter from Chicago who composed sucn favorites as "Ain't She Sweet" and "Happy Days are Here Again." "Maybe that has something to do with it," Ms. Alexander said.

Now, can't you just hear Kilpatrick, who refers to himself as a schoolboy debater from the '30s, responding with an "OK, OK, Shana"?

"THERE IS A saying that goes something like, in every man there is a latent tendency to strut and roll his eyes," Kilpatrick said. "Meaning, there is a little ham in all of us."

Director Sidney Poitier finds laughs not enough

by DAVID STERRITT

For Sidney Poitier, a few good laughs aren't enough. As director, star and driving force behind his films, he wants to say something that will linger after the chuckles have faded.

This explains a lot about his latest, "A Piece of the Action," in which he shares the stage with Bill Cosby and James Earl Jones in a story about "lovable crooks" who are blackmailed — by a policeman — into going straight and serving their community. The usual laughs are present, but there are somber moments as well, as the "heroes" come up against inner-city youths disillusioned far beyond their years.

"My previous two pictures were designed to give fun and laughter, nothing serious," explained Poitier during a recent interview, referring to his hits, "Uptown Saturday Night" and "Let's Do It Again," which also costarred Cosby. "I felt a third would be repeating myself, and I don't like to repeat myself, especially at this stage of my life. I felt I should make a film with more substance . . .

"AMERICA IS a very complex country, confronted with such important questions as abortion, inflation, high unemployment in certain areas and the concomitant results. We are an enormously successful nation that has no sense of where it's going. We know these things, but we don't make pictures about them, because we get enough on the 6 o'clock news. For their $3, people want surcease from what these questions represent. But they will partake of what you have to say if you entertain them, too. This is difficult, but it has to be done."

So Poitier returned to one of his many talents — comedy — and sought to tie his messages into a diverting framework. The core of "A Piece of the Action" is his feeling that "there is a hostility inherent in the lifestyle of the underclass. That's a fact because of the wealth, the material nature of our society.

"And that hostility is not directed at a faceless force. It is directed at anyone who represents the other side of where they are. It cuts through racial, ethic and religious camaraderie. It's powerful, forceful. Underclass blacks resent middle-class blacks just like middle-class whites, Catholics or whatever, because they represent the force that contains them . . . " Thus one of the most powerful moments in "A Piece of the Action" is a ghetto girl's denunciation of a poverty worker who is also black — "but she has 'made it,' and that sets her aside."

IN POITIER'S LATEST movie, the lovable crooks reach ghetto youth "by bringing to bear a certain savvy with regard to the kids' value system on their own street level," he said. "They say you have to exercise certain energies toward your own survival. Making it is a touchstone in our society, but first you have to make it in terms of self-acceptance. The disciplines and responsibilities are only possible when you have a sense of yourself. And there are rules, too: courtesy, for example.

"The thing is, I shouldn't have to say this in a movie! It should be part of the educational structure of ghetto kids and rich suburban kids. But it isn't. What has happened to the simple energy that used to say 'please' and 'thank you?' Unlike some places in the world, we just don't hold our children in very high esteem. There is no national educational structure to deal with this. Instead we allow conditions close to barbarism in our classrooms — not just barbaric between students, but in the way the system deals with the students."

POITIER FEELS most strongly about the state of education today. "In cities — a very instrumental and considerable part of our society — we have schools turning out semi-literates. At 18 years old, they can hardly express themselves, and whose responsibility is that? Not just the parent, necessarily, but school systems, the government, society as a whole. Our feeble excuse is that our pursuit of materialism enables the pursuit of excellence for our children, but we are pursuing the materialism more."

Poitier's directing career began "haphazardly" in 1972, when the director walked off the Mexican location of a movie he was in, and the studio let him try his hand. Since then he has helmed several major pictures in addition to keeping up the acting career that has made him a top box-office draw and (for "Lillies of the Field") Oscar-winner. Yet the movies are a precarious business, and I asked him if a flop — no matter how thoughtul and well-intended — might put a dent in his career. "No," he said. "Rather, it would wreck the thing almost completely!" And then he laughed heartily at the foibles of Hollywood.

"EVERY PICTURE I make is a risk," he continued. "But I've found people through the years to take risks with me, and many of those risks paid off."

Poitier has built a long (some three decades) and successful career on being a "good guy." Indeed, some Poitier watchers have wondered if he will ever dare take on a truly villainous role. He advises them not to hold their breath waiting.

"I enjoy being an actor that, for the most part, people respect. It contributes a lot to my sense of self — that what I do is of such a nature that people not only find pleasure in it but appreciate it. And that kind of artistic life requires the taking of a lot of chances . . ."

New 'Kwai' bridge just movie prop

RIVER KWAI, Thailand (UPI) — The River Kwai has a new bridge but it is very shaky and even more temporary.

Film makers involved in the movie, "The Deer Hunter," have strung a swaying bamboo bridge over the 40-yard river, about an hour's trip by boat upriver from the most famous structure.

The film bridge is the third known span over this muddy river that was made famous by a book and a movie about the World War II Allied prisoners who built it under Japanese guard.

The original bridge was not used after the war. It later collapsed. Only a few pilings can be seen today.

A second, steel bridge over the river is used by the State Railways of Thailand. It carries hundreds of tourists a week to and over the river.

Now the EMI-Universal film starring Robert De Niro is going to use a third bridge.

"The Deer Hunter" is set partly in Vietnam but the war scenes are being filmed here in the jungles of Kanchanaburi Province.

Stars De Niro, Christopher Walken and John Savage fall from the bridge (stuntmen will handle that part) after a brief fight with a Viet Cong guard. And that's it for the bridge in the movie.

Holiday gold glitters in new fashions

BELLES IN silver and gold will glitter at gatherings all through the holidays. This gown from Lorraine-Anne features a sparkly silver blouson jacket over silvery gray gown with comfortable elastic shirred waist.

by MARIANNE SCOTT

If you can afford to forget the classic basics you're bound to strike gold when shopping for holiday togs. Besides gold you'll find glitter galore in the department stores and some in area shops as well.

But if you don't opt for glitter you can glisten in the soft luster of satins, velvets or silks or include just a gleam of glint in your accessories.

If you bought gold shoes and other accessories last summer when they became popular daytime dressy occasions you're all set for the holidays. If you didn't, now is the perfect opportunity to make these additions to your wardrobe. Shoe stores and department stores have many styles, both high and low heels.

HOWEVER, ALL that glitters is not gold. There are racks of silvers and other sparkly ensembles. You can shimmer in the new pastels, the popular brights or the pretty prints that are being shown.

Challis is one of the more popular print fabrics for the holidays, but the tones are a bit softer and the flowers a bit smaller than those of the fall season. The pastel flowers on light colored grounds are particularly pretty and feminine.

Always popular for the holidays are the all-white ensembles. All-over lace or lace details are everywhere. So is white eyelet. White wool flannel (or its equivalent) is back in suits with either slacks or skirts or both. With your white suit you can wear a gold mesh blouse, a Victorian lace-trimmed crepe blouse or whatever suits your mood and the occasion. Whatever blouse you choose, the neckline will likely be ruffled, embroidered, tied, smocked or trimmed in something that glistens.

Sweaters, too, can be fanciful for the holiday season. Lacy pointelles and those shot with silver or gold can top shirts and slacks.

IN SKIRTS, the dirndls are newest and they look great in challis. While most dirndls are gathered, you can also find them pleated, flounced, tiered or ruffle-edged. Many have matching stoles.

With some of the brown-toned dirndles you can look like a rich peasant with an antique gold-trimmed blouse. Of course, you can top the dirndl with any of the many drawstring neckline blouses.

There are also many wrap skirts on the racks, many with slits and many cut very, very full on the bias. Velvets and velveteens are popular fabrics this year in skirts.

A velvet blazer will serve double duty, during the holidays and for a long time after. Black or wine are good, so is brown. A blouse that is tucked, shirred, ruffled or trimmed with lace adds the sweet touch the designers are talking about.

IN DRESSES the slinky fabrics seem to fairly glide over the body in the holiday fashions. And the shapes may be boxy, but you can belt them. The slinkies are great when draped, and there is nothing more comfortable or flattering.

Besides the drapes in one-shoulder, no-shoulder or two-shoulder styles, you'll find lots of billowy organzas and chiffons. Some are in solids and some are in prints. And some are two-piece ensembles such as gold-laced camisoles with georgette skirts.

If you have nice legs, you really should add one of the new, short cocktail dresses to your holiday (and after) wardrobe. Of course, your shoes should be feminine and flirty with the highest of heels.

IF YOU PREFER the comfort and ease of party pants, these come in all colors and manner of fabrics and prints. Many are topped with matching tunics. Newest are the drawstring waists — great in satins. If you like something more fitted and not quite as dressy, there are satin jeans — if you are young and have the figure.

Whatever you choose to wear to holiday balls, parties or family gatherings, don't forget your shawl, the No. 1 seller among accessories this year. They can top a bare or covered gown, a suit, a sweater, a cape or even your coat.

Reversible jackets, coats combine style and durability

FASHION NOTES — In addition to being quite functional, many of this season's reversible outer coats and jackets have been given smart fashion treatments.

As an illustration, the designers at Europe Craft style their full-length reversible coat with a hood and toggle-button front. Natural-tone duck is used for one side of the coat and is contrasted with dark corduroy on the reverse side.

The classic jacket with rib-knit collar, waist and cuffs also becomes a two-way garment. Here again, natural duck reverses to dark corduroy. Throat strap loops on both sides of the collar are practical features which add a smart touch.

Dear Mr. Juster: Did my wife read you right in regard to the pressing of coat sleeves? She is sure you said in one of your columns that sleeves should be pressed without a crease. I have always made a point of having one put in and can't see what is wrong with that. — L. F. J.

Yes, your wife read me right. The sleeves of your coat will have a much more graceful look if they are "rolled." A razor edge on trouser legs is highly recommended, but applying it to the jacket sleeves gives them an overly severe appearance.

Dear Mr. Juster: My two kids gave me a gold-and-black striped tie for my birthday. I don't want to make them feel bad, but I only wear dark gray or navy blue suits. Because I don't have any in brown suits, wouldn't it be best to exchange the tie? — C. R.

Where did you get the idea that a gold-and-black tie can only be worn with brown? Thank your kids for picking a tie in a smart color combination goes well with either dark gray or navy and forget about exchanging it.

Dear Mr. Juster: The seedy way my husband's younger brother dresses is driving me to distraction. I wouldn't care except that he's constantly at our place and it is embarrassing whenever company drops in. I finally told him he is not welcome unless he spruces up. My husband said I was too hard on him. Was I? — Mrs. G. L.

I'm with you. If your brother-in-law doesn't give a hoot about the way he looks that is his privilege. However when he visis you he should be considerate enough not to embarrass you. Who knows, your ultimatum may be just what's needed to get him to shape up.

CLOTHES-ING NOTE — When shopping for a suit, before deciding on the one that appeals to you, give it the "calisthenics" test. Bend down, stretch your arms, twist around. These are things you will be doing when wearing the suit, so make certain it will be comfortable before buying it.

For your copy of the leaflet, "Knotty Problems," which gives you some good tips about tying your tie, send 10 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Harry Juster, in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Skiers all going 'down' on the slopes

by MARILYN THELEN

Skiers in the Northwest are waxing their skis. The first snow has fallen, and already there is more snow at timberline than there was last year in December. So, its time for the skiers to look over their ski wardrobe and make the necessary updates.

The biggest news for skiers to notice is that the price of raw down is sky-rocketing. And according to Peter Bauer, president of White Stag Action Sports division, the price of a ski jacket will be about 25 per cent higher next season.

Today's skier however might consider passing up down products in favor of the pseudo-downs that have been developed. Some of these offer most of the plus factors and few of the minuses. The same goes for fabrics previously thought unsuitable for ski clothes. This fall you'll see corduroy, neoprene (as in wetsuits!), cotton poplins, and a variety of knits converted into skiwear.

Sweaters, too, are coming out. Literally. They are being worn as jackets in areas where dry snow, and wind, and, sunny days abound.

ZIP-TOGETHER SUITS are popular, offering a one-piece ski suit and the jacket and pants option. But the news in ski suits is in the play of textures and colors off of one another, like corduroy against Flight satin. The Profile label offers gold and silver metallics. White Stag uses parachute cloth for "puffy parkas."

Vests are probably the singularly most important item for the ski wardrobe this season. They are super zipped over a lightweight snowsuit, and they do double duty off the slopes and around town.

A color check shows that earth tones will compete with lipstick red and bright greens. And for those coordinate freaks, this season they will be able to color key their skis with their boots with their outfit, (even down to their thermal underwear!)

Roffe is offering the ultimate chic in the form of a signature print that is being incorporated into its skiwear as well as used as a log scarf and matching hat.

Manufacturers finally have recognized the growing market for cross-country skiers and have come out with some neat looking knicker suits that are warm and comfortable.

THE NEWEST silhouettes this season will be adaptations of baseball jackets with knit cuffs and waistbands and jackets that offer raglan, batwing, and blouson stylings. A couple of neat touches seen on baseball (or aviator) jackets include the addition

Kits make sewing own skiwear easy for anyone

by MARILYN THELEN

Making clothing as well as other useful items from kits is not a new idea. But most do-it-yourselfers have been "hobbyists." Today that is changing. Home sewing is everyone's alternative to buying expensive outerwear.

Take skiwear, for example.

Each year, labor and increasing costs of raw materials force higher prices on the consumer. Daisy Kingdom Kits offer skiers one alternative; Frostline Kits, another.

The Daisy Kingdom catalog showcases approximately 36 patterns, sized for men, women, and children, styled in some of the latest fashion silhouettes.

THE ADVANTAGES of sewing your own skiwear, according to Daisy Kingdom designers, include the customized fit, better fabrics available as a part of the kit and the possibility of creatively constructing your own garment, adding finishing touches that individualize the design.

One of the fabrics that Daisy Kingdom supplies is neoprene, familiar to many as wetsuit material. Neoprene is made of rubber with nylon stretch fabric bonded to each side, offering four-way stretch comfort. It is simple to construct, using glued seams and trim tape.

'Starsky' — skiers down-filled vest.

Daisy Kingdom kits can be purchased either as a unit, containing accessories, fabric, and pattern (fabrics are not pre-cut, which allows the home-sewer the maximum flexibility in alteration) or the components — patterns, fabric, notions — can be ordered separately.

To receive their illustrated catalog and a listing of stores where their kits may be purchased write to Daisy Kingdom: 217 N.W. Davic, Portland, Ore. 97209 or call 1-503-222-9033.

Another familiar name in the kit business is Frostline Kits. In fact, they say that they "invented outerwear kits," beginning 10 years ago. Today, Frostline offers the outerwear customer a choice of many patterns and materials. Their kits don't include a pattern. Instead, materials are precut and all accessories are included with illustrated and easy-to-follow instructions.

ONCE A CUSTOMER has made a jacket or vest, the catalog encourages him to tackle a tent or a sleeping bag.

You might have noticed that the manufacturer's price of down garments and other items has increased sharply due to the escalation of the price of raw down. So making your own down apparel is a way to save money. Frostline procedures for working with down seem foolproof, even for beginners.

Besides offering an excellent catalog, Frostline also has 18 retail stores in various cities. For information, write to Frostline Kits, Dept. C, Frostline Circle, Denver, Colo. 90241 or call 1-303-451-5600.

One interesting fact about making these kits is that anyone can do it. People at both companies say that men who have never sewn before, once they have successfully completed one garment, often go on to make two or three more.

One high school home economics teacher commented that her most successful class was when the boys got into making vests ... no discipline problems!

of knit sleeves or cover-all quilting that includes a warm hood.

Another trick is to buy a jacket with its own number sewn into the back. Are you ready?

Here in the West, people take their skiing seriously. Last year's snowless season seems to have cleaned up ski apparel's act. For Fall '77, manufacturers are offering ski garb that is priced within family budgets with styles for everyone's taste.

Mostly, it is up to the consumer to become a smart skiwear shopper. It's recommended that you don't buy down just because you've heard it's the "in" thing. Check out your personal needs. One thing you won't be short on: selection. The secret to successful shopping is to remember that you rarely get more value than you pay for, especially where high performance is expected in a garment.

The ski season for '77-'78 is imminent. It's time to get into the stores so you'll be ready to slip out on to the slopes in style.

The doctor says

Good, long walk one way to get exercise

I would be interested in your comments on jogging, tennis, golf or other forms of exercise for a person with an irregulat pulse and palpitation. I am a man, 60 years old, 5 feet 11, and wieigh 183, and have no other medical problems.

Other than a daily dose of Inderal, phenobarbital, and Lanoxin, I take no medication. My work is fairly sedentary, but I plan to retire in six months.

It depends entirely upon what causes the palpitations or irregularities. If they occur in a healthy person, and a medical check shows no problems, such an individual can develop an exercise program gradually.

You may be taking the Lanoxin to control irregularities or you may be taking it because your doctor thinks your heart muscle needs strengthening. Since you require heart medicine, you should not engage in physical activity unless your own doctor approves of it. He will have additional information that will help in making the decision.

I would approve of your developing a daily walking habit. Start gradually if you have been sedentary, and try to build up to three miles a day. You can walk the distance in divided amounts rather than all at one time. I would not recommend jogging, tennis or even golf until your doctor says it is OK for you.

When the heart is already overworked because of disease, it is not a good idea to work it even harder. That is why some people with heart disease have to restrict their physical activity. For the person who does not have such limitations, a sensible exercise program may help to forestall or even prevent heart disease. What is good for one is not good for all.

So many women these days are plagued with facial hair. Can you enlighten us as to the cause, how to avoid it, what to do about it when it is excessive, and what part do synthetic hormones play in this embarrassing and agonizing problem?

The two main factors involved are familiar characteristics and the balance between male and female hormones. Men and women have both male and female hormones. The balance is what counts. In women, when the ovaries stop functioning, the adrenal gland remains as the main source for both male and female hormones.

Some women have a higher ratio of male hormones, which thickens the facial hairs. Additional female hormones often help, but when that is not a good idea for medical reasons, or is otherwise not feasible, then the only thing left is to physically remove the hair. This can be accomplished by professional electrolysis. Your doctor can help you find a qualified one in your area. A dermatologist usually knows which ones are reputable in the community.

Of course you can pull them out — ouch — but they will come back whether you use a wax preparation or tweezers. And you can often improve your appearance by bleaching them.

Powdered milk pouch helps preserve seeds

The National Garden Bureau has developed a technique for preserving unused seeds in platic bags and refrigerating them. You need a wide-mouth jar with a rubber ring in the cap, some facial tissues, cellophane tape and a fresh package of powdered dry milk. First, stack flat four facial tissues and put two generous tablespoons of milk powder at one corner of the tissues. Fold and tape the tissue in the form of a pouch. Place the pouch in the jar and slip the taped seed packets into it. Close the jar tightly and refrigerate, opening only to replace the powdered milk every three or four months. Use the seeds as soon as possible next spring.

Dear Roberta: Are you supposed to use a loosely filled measure of brown sugar if a recipe doesn't specify that it be packed firm? Also, does it make any difference whether you use light or dark sugar? — Diane Easter

Unless a recipe specifies otherwise, assume that brown sugar is to be packed down tightly enough to hold the shape it forms in the spoon or measuring cup. Also assume that a recipe listing plain "brown sugar" uses the light kind. Dark brown sugar has a stronger flavor and is used less often.

Tip to Young Independents: Pull out the clothes that need cool temperatures for ironing first, and press them in the same order as the iron's ascending temperature dial. (You might hold out one item, like a pair of old jeans, to do when the iron is turned off.) Then you won't risk scorching a delicate fabric by a bad guess as to when the iron is cool enough to press it. The cost of heat energy lost does not equal the replacement cost of a burned garment.

Deck your halls with joy

Welcoming wreaths on the door, ropes of holly, pine and balsam festooning doorways and mantlepieces, clumps of mistletoe, radiant poinsettias, and the gloriously trimmed tree — these natural holiday decorations are the enduring symbols of Christmas, bestowing the special spirit of the season on all those who enter.

Variations on these cherished adornments are virtually unlimited. All it takes to create some unique holiday decorations is a little ingenuity and some of the wares that can be found at any florist's shop.

Consider, for example, a wreath fashioned entirely of pine cones. Using a styrofoam form, the cones are affixed with glue or pins and, for a final fillip, accented with a red plaid bow. When the holidays are over, store the wreath in a plastic bag and it will grace your door for many Christmases to come.

The traditionally favorite evergreen wreath can also be made uncommon by the addition of feathers, seashells or clumps of artificial red cherries, lemons and limes. Or adorn the wreath with dried flowers such as lotus pods, starflowers and leatherleaf fronds — the effect is a stunning contrast of color and texture. And instead of the conventional red bow, finish it off with a gay polka dot or checked ribbon.

If you want a centerpiece that's also a conversation piece, scout around for some less conventional containers. Large soup tureens, ceramic pitchers, crystal decanters, wooden tubs, miniature sleds, baskets made of bread dough, terra cotta or straw, apothecary or Ball canning jars, small copper coal scuttles and buckets — all lend themselves beautifully to stunning floral-greens displays.

EVEN MUSICAL instruments can play a harmonious part in holiday decorations. The horn of an old trombone, for instance, filled with red carnations and a spill of ivy and holly would be an epe-catching grace note hung on the wall of foyer or living room.

And this is the time to bring out your precious antiques — a silver epergne, porcelain baskets, pewter mugs, large crystal goblets, odd china creamers and sugar bowls — all can be highlighted with an arrangement of flowers and a few sprigs of evergreen, arranged on a bed of foam.

To make any of your floral-greens displays last, florists advise starting with wet foam and keeping it moist with a preservative solution. Packets of these preservatives, which are mixed with water, are available at all flower shops.

Candles are another favorite holiday decoration and for good reason — they're an easy and inexpensive way to create dramatic and elegant effects. One idea is to cluster four or five fat yellow or red candles of different heights in a large low container and artfully surround them with a rope of red-berried holly interspersed with pine cones. Spray with a fire retardant.

Especially charming are the arrangements that can be made with candlestick inserts. These glass bowls, available at most florist shops, are about six inches in diameter and fit in the hole of a candlestick. Lined with foam, the bowls can hold a wreath-like arrangement of flowers around the candle. Miniature carnations and white starburst mums are particularly pretty for these candle-floral displays and, for a little glitter, nestle a few tiny silver Christmas balls in among the flowers.

LOVERS OF poinsettia plants will discover the new varieties are longer lasting, in more colors and available in size to suit your decor from the giant variety to the Pixie poinsettia, only 12 inches high with three or four blooms. If you fancy hanging baskets, the poinsettia, with its tendency to grow in a graceful cascade, is the perfect holiday "hang-up."

Sharing the holiday scene with poinsettias are a host of other flowering charm to any room they grace. The Christmas cherry, also known as Jerusalem cherry, boasts nonedible orange-sized cherries that bloom from September through January.

Christmas holly with its bright red berries flourishes in November and December. Exotic Christmas Kalanchoe can be had with either pink, salmon, orange, yellow or red blooms and thrives in the winter months.

OF COURSE, the most beloved Christmas decoration of all is the tall fir tree trimmed with ornaments and candy canes and festooned with tinsel and ropes of popcorn. In many homes and apartments, though, rooms are frequently too small to accommodate a big tree. Fortunately, there are several attractive alternatives that are almost as festive and will fit in small quarters.

One such is a Norfolk Island pine tree, which has tiny soft needles and is shaped much like the traditional "tannenbaum" but grows to a height of only two to six feet. Displayed as a floor plant or on a table-top, it can be decorated with miniature ornaments, narrow ribbon bows and a dusting of artificial snow on its branches. And with proper attention, the hardy Norfolk Island pine will last for many holiday seasons to come.

The Christmas garden is another decorative alternative that can be displayed on a coffee table. It consists of a small Norfolk Island pine tree, a miniature poinsettia and some English ivy planted together in one large container. Finished off with a red velvet bow, the garden is a captivating Christmas decoration that will flourish throughout the holidays, and, repotted individually, long afterwards.

Lastly, for those with limited space, try a Christmas terrarium — a glass bowl about four or five inches in diameter with a cover — in which is planted a miniature holly plant and showy scarlet Partridge berries, both of which thrive in the moist atmosphere of a closed container. Add a miniature sled or some small silver balls and the Christmas terrarium is a beguiling accent piece even for those lucky enough to have big trees and all the trimmings.

Record foreign trade deficit blamed on dockworkers' strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States' foreign trade deficit soared by a record $3.1 billion in October as a dock strike hampered shipments of American exports, the government said Monday.

The United States sold $9.2 billion in goods to other nations last month while buying $12.3 billion worth of foreign products, the Commerce Dept. said.

The resulting $3.1 billion deficit was the biggest in history, topping June's $2.8 billion in red ink. October was the 17th consecutive month the United States' trade ledger has been in deficit.

INTERNATIONAL monetary markets and investors along Wall Street reacted unfavorably to news of the deficit, sending stocks lower and sharply reducing the value of the dollar against foreign currencies.

The value of exports was the lowest since March, 1976 and was attributed directly to results of the two-month old longshoremen's strike on East coast and Gulf coast docks.

American shippers had scurried in September to send products overseas because of the impending strike.

Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said the trade statistics for both September and October were "distorted" by the dock strike.

"EXPORTS ROSE sharply in September as shipments were moved forward in anticipation of the strike," she said. "Exports then fell in October as the strike took effect.

"The imbalances in the world economy continue to be a cause of concern, but the unusually large trade deficit in October stems from temporary factors rather than a worsening of the underlying situation," Mrs. Slater said.

For the first 10 months of 1977, the deficit has totaled $22.4 billion, compared with $4 billion for the same period in 1976, the Commerce Dept. said. The previous high for any full year was $6.4 billion in 1972.

the administration, which has been steadily raising its prediction for the full year deficit, now believes the gap could reach $30 billion in 1977.

EARLIER THIS year, some administration sources downplayed the importance of the large deficit, contending that big U.S. deficits were necessary to balance out huge trade surpluses compiled by oil-exporting nations.

The rationale, they said, was that the U.S. was helping other countries to recover from the 1974-75 recession by providing markets for their goods.

However, Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal acknowledged earlier this month that the deficit is "worrisome" and labor unions have been urging the erection of trade barriers to imports that threaten American jobs.

Imported oil cost $3.56 billion last month, a slight decrease from the $3.7 billion level in September.

Nine of the 10 export categories registered decreases from September. The four categories that fell the most were machinery and transportation equipment, chemicals, manufactured goods and food and live animals.

Business briefs

Overbalance cited in consumer credit

The current credit flow in the United States is spurring inflation because too much goes into consumer credit and not enough to production credit, Sidney Homer, partner in Salomon Brothers, told the American Council of Life Insurance Monday. Homer said that consumer credit for all of this year will increase five or six times as fast as new credit going into production. He estimated the total production credit flow this year to $40 billion and consumer credit at $260 billion, including $20 billion in government funds. Homer suggested putting a ceiling on mortgage credit for housing in order to force more of the available money into industry. He also said savings and loan associations should be encouraged to invest in industry by buying corporate bonds.

Miller urges talks for coal firms

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller, who has said a strike against bituminous coal companies is inevitable is encouraging independent talks between the union and three coal firms. Miller said this weekend the talks between the UMW and three firms unhappy with past contracts negotiated by the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn. might encourage other BCOA operators to seek resumption of negotiations in Washington.

Top court denies Bell case review

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Monday lost its second attempt to get the Supreme Court to block government efforts to break up the Bell system. In a brief order, the justices rejected arguments from the world's most widely held public corporation that it is immune from antitrust action because state and federal governments regulate rates and other aspects of its operation. The Supreme Court turned down a similar AT&T request Jan. 25. The case will proceed before U.S. District Judge Joseph Waddy in Washington. Assistant Atty. Gen. John Shenefield said his antitrust division will "continue to prepare actively for trial and intends to conduct our part of the case as quickly and fairly as possible."

Clean air rule relaxation predicted

The administration is going to have to relax its clean air standards if it wants to attain the goal of doubling coal use by 1985, the American Gas Assn. says. An AGA analysis, according to group president George Lawrence, found that Clean Air Act requirements could become the most significant potential constraint to coal conversion involving large, gas-fired industrial and electric utility boilers. The national energy plan calls for coal consumption to increase 540 million tons per year by 1985, but the Gas Assn. analysis said it might rise under clean air constraints by only 260 million tons per year.

Iran to back oil price freeze

Iranian Prime Minister Jamshid Amouzegar said Monday Iran will support a two-year freeze on oil prices when oil exporters meet next month to debate price increases. The disclosure in an interview in the Kuwaiti Daily Al Qabas appeared to represent another significant and, for the Western oil consumers, highly favorable shift in Iran's oil policy, which traditionally has been to press for higher prices. In a surprise move, the oil sheikhdom of Abu Dhabi has decided to cut 1978 oil production ceilings by 16.4 per cent, the Middle East Economic Survey reported Monday. The publication said any of several reasons could have prompted the move — "technical reasons," the softness of the oil market, a "genuine desire for conservation," or a reaction against oil companies' laxness in exploring.

Warning against protectionism

Advanced industrial nations will worsen rather than ease their current economic problems by adopting protectionist measures, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade warned Monday. A lengthy report on the dangers of protectionism by three GATT senior economists said trade liberalization and not protective trade barriers will promote economic recovery and reduce inflation and unemployment. "Protectionist pressures, reflecting a refusal to adjust to changing patterns of supply and demand, are as much as cause as a consequence of the recent economic difficulties of the advanced economies," the study said.

Lehman, Kuhn Loeb to merge

Two of Wall Street's biggest and most prestigious investment banking houses, Lehman Brothers and Kuhn Loeb & Co., Monday announced an agreement in principle to merge. The two firms said it is hoped to complete the merger by Dec. 16. Kuhn Loeb is known to have discussed a merger with several Wall Street firms in recent months. It may have a small deficit this year attributable in part to trading in government National Mortgage Assn. securities. Lehman Brothers is reported to have netted $20 million in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. Both companies are privately held.

Carter's conflicting stands on coal

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — When it comes to energy, the Carter Administration continues to generate more heat than light.

And the current tortured efforts to evolve a national coal policy dramatize both the over-all failure and one of its most significant causes: a tendency to avoid hard decisions, while seeming to make them, by simultaneously and bombastically enunciating two directly conflicting positions.

Hence Carter No. 1 tells us he wants us to use much more coal. But Carter No. 2 tells us we are not going to let down our environmental standards by one iota; indeed, we are going to keep on raising them.

THE TWO POSITIONS together become meaningless nonsense. Their chief effect is not to cause action, but to thwart it.

Let's take Carter for starters, because he is the one with the most economic sense on his side. The American reservoirs of coal are immense and internationlly unique. We're not about to run out of it: it could, in theory, provide a major energy source for centuries to come.

So one of the soundest parts of President Carter's early approach to energy seemed to be his emphasis on stepped-up use of coal. His program even quantified this in ambitious numbers: coal production to rise from 665 million tons last year to more than a billion tons by 1985, increasing coal's share of total U.S. energy use from 18 per cent to 29 per cent. Since the increase alone would provide energy equal to that supplied by our total oil imports today, it would make a great deal of sense in terms of reducing our reliance on uncertain foreign suppliers and beginning to restore some strength to the beleaguered American dollar.

But in this as in other economic areas, the difference between announcing goals and implementing them is everything and nowhere does the policy of Carter No. 1 founder more patently than when it runs up against the policy of Carter No. 2.

NOW LET'S ASSUME that the President is not secretly "anticoal," as some conclude, but is entirely sincere in both positions. It's not impossible: indeed, most Americans would like to see us both solving our energy problems and cleaning up the air and water as we went.

A better environment is not incompatible with a better economy. But what is incompatible is the notion that we can pay lip service to those who irrationally demand total purity tomorrow while at the same time proceeding in any meaningful way down the road to higher living standards or even meeting our most basic energy needs. The inescapable word is compromise.

What is required is not abandonment of environmental concerns but frank Presidential acknowledgment that we are going to take a little longer than we thought to get to nirvana. Most Americans, it seems clear, are willing to defer eliminating the last 1 per cent of pollution as part of a major effort to free the country from foreign energy blackmail and assure the strength of the domestic economy. But to set us on that compromise course will require a courageous Carter No. 3.

Firms play Santa for workers: polls

American employers plan to be more generous with their workers this holiday season than they have been in the past, according to two recently released national surveys.

Year-end bonuses will be given out by 75 per cent of the companies responding to a survey conducted by the Dartnell Institute of Business Research, Chicago, an increase of 2 per cent from 1976.

The bonuses will take the form either of Christmas bonuses, regular year-end bonuses based on employe performance or year-end bonuses based on increases in a company's yearly profits, the institute reports.

Workers at many companies also will enjoy longer holiday weekends Christmas and New Year's Day, the Bureau of National Affairs Inc., Washington, D.C., reports.

THE BUREAU FOUND that 92 per cent of the 208 companies it surveyed plan to give employes the Monday after Chrstmas off, with 40 per cent giving the Friday before Christmas off and an additional 11 per cent allowing a half day off Friday.

The Monday following New Year's Day will be a holiday at 73 per cent of the firms, with 31 per cent granting a holiday the Friday before. Both Christmas and New Year's Day fall on Sundays.

Thanksgiving saw 68 per cent of the firms surveyed granting four-day weekends to employes, up from 61 per cent during 1976, the bureau reports.

Trade deficit sends stocks tumbling

NEW YORK (UPI) — The government's report of a record $3.1 billion October trade deficit triggered a selling spree Monday that left blue-chip issues lower for the first time in five sessions. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, up a fraction at the outset, dropped 4.85 points to 839.57. The average had gained 12.56 points in the past five sessions, including 8.66 in last week's four sessions. It rose 1.12 points Friday.

The trade figures prompted heavy selling because they translated to a $36 billion deficit on an annual basis, a more negative position than Wall Street or the government had anticipated.

investors ignored Commerce Dept. statements that the figures were distorted by a two-month-old American dockworkers strike and that oil remained the major culprit.

An early stock buying spurt was sparked by the Federal Reserve Board's report late Friday that the nation's basic money supply rose only $200 million in the latest reporting week.

Traders, however, were disturbed that a broader measure of the money supply climbed $1.1 billion and that the dollar fell in Europe. This put pressure on the Fed to hike interest rates.

Against this background, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index fell 0.31 to 53.02 and the average price of a share shed 18 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, lost 0.65 to 96.04.

Rhodesians kill Mozambique black guerillas

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian troops drove 136 miles inside Mozambique last week and killed more than 1,200 black nationalist guerrillas in air and ground attacks that destroyed two guerrilla base camps, the military command said Monday.

The attacks, unprecedented in scope and ferocity, began last Wednesday at the same time Prime Minister Ian Smith was unveiling a plan to bring peace to Rhodesia through a one-man, one-vote majority rule settlement with Rhodesia-based nationalist leaders. Nationalist leaders outside Rhodesia rejected the plan and vowed to continue their five-year guerilla war.

COMBINED OPERATIONS Minister Roger Hawkins said the attacks were ordered because of a guerrilla buildup inside Mozambique, Rhodesia's eastern neighbor, and because of increased guerrilla infiltration into Rhodesia. They were the biggest attacks ever mounted inside Mozambique and marked the deepest penetration of the neighboring country.

A military communique reported only one Rhodesian soldier was killed and said the aims of the Rhodesian ground and air attacks "were all successfully achieved."

"In excess of 1,200 armed terrorists were killed and many others wounded. Large quantities of war material, including weapons, vehicles, ammunition, fuel, buildings and documents were destroyed." Reports from Mozambique said another 650 guerrillas were wounded.

U P I CORRESPONDENT Tony Avirgan, normally based in Dar Es Salaan, Tanzania, was in Chimdid, Mozambique, on assignment when the Rhodesians were attacking the Zanla base 10 miles away.

Guerrilla survivors told Avirgan that Rhodesian airborne troops swooped onto the camp and began killing its occupants systematically. Avirgan reported that a large Mozambican column tried fighting its way to the base but was driven off by aerial bombardment.

He said the column reached the camp after the Rhodesians had departed and found scores of bodies there, including boys and girls in their teens who had been receiving indoctrination on the fight against Rhodesia.

THE GOVERNMENT announcement of the twin raids electrified the white population of Rhodesia. Whites began trading enthusiastic congratulations and praising "our trophies" as soon as the military command broke its silence on the operations, which were reported by Mozambique earlier in the week.

The Rhodesian communique said one of the bases destroyed in attacks Wednesday and Thursday was headquarters for the Zimbabne African National Liberation Army, the military wing of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabne African National Union. It is 55 miles inside Mozambique.

'Mormon will' trial centers on Hughes kidney disease

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — With his hand trembling and memory faltering because of kidney disease, Howard Hughes scribbled a three-page will in 1968 leaving millions of dollars to a gas station operator who befriended him in the desert, a jury was told Monday.

Attorney Harold Rhoden, in opening statements in the long-awaited trail to determine the validity of the so-called "Mormon will," told the jury of five men and three women he would present evidence to show that Hughes wrote the document while stricken with disabling kidney disease which killed him April 5, 1976.

"We contend this will was written by Howard Hughes," Rhoden said. "They (attorneys opposing the will), I believe, will contend it is a forgery."

RHODEN SAID he will present testimony backing up the claim of former Willard, Utah, gas station operator Melvin Dummar that he met Hughes in the desert and gave him a ride to Las Vegas, an act of friendship which Hughes paid back by naming Dummar to receive one-sixteenth of his estate.

"Our contention is that Melvin Dummar lived in Gabbs (Nev.), about two months before the will was written in March 1968," Rhoden said. "The will refers to Melvin Dummar of Gabbs, Nev."

Rhoden said opposing attorneys will contend Dummar never met Hughes and that either Dummar or someone around him forged the will between the time of Hughes' death and the time the will was delivered to a Nevada court by officials of the Mormon Church three weeks later.

The attorney represents Noah Dietrich, who was named executor of the "Mormon will" despite being fired by Hughes in 1957 after acting as his righthand man for more than 30 years.

"DIETRICH BUILT and literally ran the Howard Hughes empire from 1925 to 1957," Rhoden said.

Rhoden said part of his case will deal with Hughes' medical history. He said he will show that Hughes suffered from kidney disease for the last 10 years of his life and was given blood transfusions for anemia.

The attorney explained that when the kidneys fail, poisons in the system are not properly eliminated and stay in the bloodstream, eventually reaching the brain and causing "loss of recent memory and problems of handwriting. It will cause people to misspell words." He said the blood transfusions also led to a trembling of Hughes' hand when he wrote.

The "Mormon will" is written with a feeble hand and contains numerous errors in spelling.

Application for Scout trip open

The Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America is accepting applications for a trip scheduled next year to the Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base near Cimarron, N.M.

Robert Lindell of Schaumburg, member of the Northwest council executive board, will lead the trip, which is scheduled in July 1978 and will cost participants $260 each. Although transportation and fees are included in the cost, officials said a $50 reservation fee is being collected on a first-come, first-served basis.

Lindell said applicants will be screened by the Philmont committee. The council expects to send only 30 Scouts to the ranch.

"Boys and Scout units that want 12 days of rugged high mountains and hiking and camping over historic sites which are part of the West will take part in this trip to the 137,000-acre camp," Robert Radasch, chairman for the council's High Adventure Committee, said.

Information on the Philmont program is available from the council service center at 1300 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, telephone 394-5050.

Sox, Moore sign pact; mum on salary

Bill Veeck was a very busy man Monday.

The White Sox president wheeled and dealed his way to add five new players to his roster, while sending two others packing.

• HE SIGNED free agent Alvin "Junior" Moore, a 24-year-old third baseman, formally with the Atlanta Braves, to a two-year contract.

• He signed Greg Pryor, a 28-year-old shortstop who batted .271 with 52 RBIs for Syracuse of the International League this year.

• He signed minor league pitchers Eddie Bane and Rich Hinton.

• He also completed the Don Kessinger-Clay Carroll deal of last season by sending Dave Hamilton and Silvio Martinez to the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards sent Veeck minor league pitcher Steve Staniland.

VEECK DENIED published reports Moore was signed for a total of $300,000, but he would not disclose the amount, hinting it was closer to half the rumored amount.

Moore, a rookie with the Braves last season, gained free agent status in a unique ruling after batting .260 for Atlanta. He hit five home runs and drove in 34 runs.

He is a second major league free agent signed by the White Sox, who previously agreed to terms with Ron Blomberg. Moore will probably be shifted to second base by Manager Bob Lemon.

"Well, he's going to replace Jack Brohamer," Veeck said. "And if he can make a job for himself, he can play second base, third base, whatever."

Moore signed a one year contract with Atlanta with a provision that he would then become a free agent. This was approved by Braves' owner Ted Turner and National League President Chub Feeney, but then Feeney said he could not approve it. The matter was taken before arbitration and Moore won.

Bane, 25, and Hinton, 30, are left-handed pitchers, both of whom are destined for work at the Sox' Iowa club and the American Assn.

Bane had a 9-8 record with Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League, while Hinton pitched for the Mexico City Reds last year with a 14-8 record in 27 games. Hinton has had previous major league experience with the Sox, Yankees, Texas and Cincinnati.

Hamilton, who was sent to St. Louis, appeared in 55 games in relief dast season with the Sox for a 4-5 record and nine saves. Martinez, 22, had an 0-1 record with Chicago and a 10-7 mark in 26 games with Iowa last year.

STANILAND, 22, was 0-3 at Arkansas and 13-6 at St. Petersburg last season.

The Milwaukee Brewers continued their love affair with the free agent draft by signing catcher Ray Fosse, the second free agent they have snagged this year.

The Brewers earlier signed Larry Hisle, the 1977 American League RBI champ, and last year took third baseman Sal Bando away from Oakland.

"The free agent draft has given us two players who will make a very big contribution," Allan "Bud" Selig, Brewers' president, said at a news conference.

Catching was one of the team's problem areas last year. Fosse, who played with Bando on two championship teams at Oakland and was an All-Star in 1971, should help. He split last season with Cleveland and Seattle, hitting .276 overall with six home runs and 32 RBI. The year before that he hit .301 with Cleveland.

The signing caps a turbulent two weeks for the Brewers that began Nov. 18 with the signing of Hisle and was followed the next day by the firings of Manager Alex Grammas and Jim Baumer, the Director of Baseball Operations.

Deer, antelope play better than Angels

After 30 years of getting the girl, killing off all the bad guys, and riding off into the sunset singing, "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine," Gene Autry, in 1960, founded the then-Los Angeles Angels. And right away, he knew what the rustlers felt like.

The Angels lost more often than the guys in the black hats. They were an Italian movie. Everyone got killed in the end.

Gene was shocked. Every place he looked, there were Indians. Things like this never would have happened in the old days at Monogram and Republic. The wags got busy. Autry's horse in the old days was "Champion," they snickered. If he made a comeback, his horse would be named "Cellar."

THE ANGELS needed a third act. Autry knew what was called for. You call in the cavalry. Only in Autry's case, it was always Custer's.

There's sort of a sporting tradition in baseball that you build a championship from the ground up. It's kind of giving the other guy the first draw.

It didn't work for Autry. He kept getting gunned down before he could get his .45 out of its holster. This was an adult Western, not a kiddies' matinee.

So Gene decided to do a little dry-gulching on his own. He began by hiring a manager. This is a dumb thing to do. Baseball is a general manager's medium.

NEXT, GENE tried players. Gene operated on the theory that what the Angels needed was one good player to put them over the hump. What the Angels needed were nine good players. At least.

In 1971, Gene thought he had finally found his John Wayne. Harry Dalton, an ex-sportswriter from Springfield, Mass., had just led the Baltimore Orioles to four pennants and two World Series in six years, largely because he had acquired a hall of fame player (Frank Robinson) for a .500 pitcher (Milt Pappas).

Autry figures the fort was saved. They would cut the league off at the pass. The varmints would swing for their crimes.

But the Angels continued to play it for comedy. Dalton brought in a pitcher who threw no-hitters on his good nights — and walked in the world on his bad.

"Phee-noms" with "can't miss" labels, not only missed — they took called third strikes. Outfielders threw into the wrong base on the infrequent occasions they to the ball in time to throw anywhere. Jerry Lewis drooled at some of the routines the Angels' infield perfected.

SO AUTRY LOOKED over at George Steinbrenner of the Yankees, who was busy buying an annual pennant on his Diners Card, so to speak, and Gene thought, "I can play that game."

Financially, Gene could. The owner of hotels, radio stations, rodeos, and a half-dozen music companies, Autry could have bought the entire American League on the annual proceeds from the royalties of "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" alone.

So Gene bought the "on paper" championship of the world. Every available .300 hitter or 20-game pitcher got into him for a bundle. But they kept getting hurt, or fooled — or benched. In other words, they turned into Angels. You had a picture of Autry running out on the field periodically yelling, "Cut! Cut! Now, just a minute, everybody, this is a take! Be serious! Somebody put a little make up on Ryan there. Now, Nolan, we're way over budget. Get this one in there!"

The Angels ended up, as usual, surrounded — a remake of "Beau Geste" instead of "Big Sky." They had arrows sticking out of them all over. Autry began looking at Dalton the way he used to look at the sheriff's who weren't getting the job done. "Marshal, how come you haven't brought in that Billy the Kid yet? Why, women aren't safe in this town!"

THE OLD COWBOY finally brought in a new man to the territory — Buzzie Bavasi, a man who had built the old Dodgers' dynasty — in other words a man who had cleaned up Dodge City. Tombstone now had two Wyatt Earps.

Dalton got the message and went clear to Milwaukee before he stopped. Buzzie got the star on his chest. The territory was now his, lawlessness and all.

Will this new lawman survive the shootout at O.K. Corral? Or will the Clantons win this one — again? Can the cavalry get there in time? Or will they arrive with back spasms, and pulled hamstrings, and broken hands, and an inability to hit the curve as usual? Will Bavasi run the rustlers out? Will the Cowboy get one more happy ending before he goes to that Big-Bunkhouse-in-the-Sky?

Many years ago — 50, in fact — when he was a telegrapher for the railroad in Sapulpa, Okla., Gene Autry was playing his guitar one day when a stranger dropped off the train, patted him on the head, and said, "Keep trying, son." That was Will Rogers, and for that chance remark, Gene Autry might now be on a Santa Fe pension. But there was another piece of advice that Sitting Bull, the retired Indian chief, used to give everybody in the stageshow "Annie Get Your Gun." It was the old Indian maxim: "No put money in show business." Old Sitting Bull didn't know Autry. But he sure would have known the Angels.

Texas keeps hold on No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Texas completed its regular-season schedule as the nation's only unbeaten major college football team this past weekend and was duly retained Monday as the No. 1 club by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The last rankings will be issued after the Jan. 2 bowl games.

Texas raised its record to 11-0 with its 57-28 drubbing of Southwest Conference for Texas A&M Saturday and earned a Cotton Bowl berth as the SWC champion.

THERE, THE Longhorns will face off against the country's top-rated independent, Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish, idle at 9-1 but with a final regular-season game against Miami of Florida on Dec. 3, retained fifth place and could move up significantly with an upset of the Longhorns Jan. 2.

Texas pulled down 36 of the 41 first-place votes cast and a total of 405 points. Notre Dame received one of the five dissenting No. 1 votes and 245 points.

Oklahoma and Alabama held second and third, respectively, but the Sooners widened their lead over the Crimson Tide for the runnerup slot from three points last week to 29 this week, 350-321. The gap increased, no doubt, when Oklahoma thrashed previous No. 10 Nebraska, 33-7, Friday. Alabama also won handily, but over an unranked opponent — 48-21 over Auburn.

The Sooners and Crimson Tide received the other first place nods, two each, after both upped their season marks to 10-1.

MICHIGAN, WHICH had finished its non-bowl schedule at 10-1, and Arkansas, which edged Texas Tech 17-14 to also be 10-1, continued in fourth and sixth places with 287 and 183 points, respectively.

Penn State, a 15-13 winner over Pittsburgh thanks to a missed two-point Panther conversion, jumped over Ohio State to seventh, with the Buckeyes dropping to eighth, 168-141. The Nittany Lions closed at 10-1, while the Buckeyes ended at 9-2.

Two other matchups in the top eight are set for Jan. 2. Oklahoma will

Raiders rout Buffalo Bills, 34-13

OAKLAND (UPI) — A gimpy-kneed Ken Stabler, a doubtful starter at game-time, passed for three touchdowns and Mark van Eeghan ran for 144 yards Monday night in leading the Oakland Raiders to a 34-13 rout over the Buffalo Bills.

Stabler, who strained a knee last week and almost didn't start, threw 28 and 12 yards to Cliff Branch and 44 to Fred Biletnikoff and left early in the fourth quarter.

Van Eeghan, with his 144-yard effort, ran his season total to 1,012 yards and became the first player in Raider history to achieve two 1,000-yard seasons. The big running back churned out all the key yardage and left it to Pete Banaszak to crack over from the 1 twice to account for the other two Raider touchdowns.

THE VICTORY gave the Raiders a 9-2 record, moved them to within a game of Denver in the AFC West and gave them a one-game lead over Miami in the conference race for the wild card berth to the playoffs.

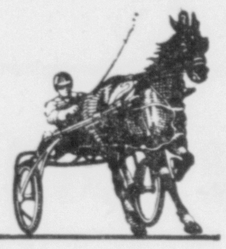

The 15-point underdog Bills made a game of it in the first half when they trailed by only 20-10 and closed to within a touchdown on Carson Long's second field goal to start the second half.

But then Stabler, who finished the game with seven completions in 12 attempts for 166 yards, quickly connected with Branch for the second time and Banaszak closed a short drive following a fumble recovery to put the game away.

The Buffalo points came on a 29-yard pass from Joe Ferguson to John Kimbrough and 40 and 33-yard field goals by Long.

O. J. Simpson was injured a month ago when the Bills lost 56-17 to the second-year expansion Seattle Seahawks. However, with Roland Hooks taking over for Simpson, Buffalo bounced back the following week to upset New England 24-14.

Unbeaten Texas keeps top spot meet Arkansas in the Orange Bowl and Alabama and Ohio State clash in the Sugar Bowl. Also, Michigan takes on Washington, which moved into a three-way tie for 14th, in the Rose Bowl and Penn State battles Arizona State, now ranked 12th, in the Fiesta Bowl Christmas Day, Dec. 25.

Pittsburgh fell to 8-2-1 and 52 points with its loss to the Nittany Lions, but held ninth place. The Panthers' final game is in the Gator Bowl Dec. 30 with Clemson, which leaped from 14th to 10th with 23 points despite having finished its season the week before, also at 8-2-1.

The second 10, in order, with record and bowl destination (if any) in parentheses, are:

North Carolina (8-2-1, Liberty); Arizona State (9-2, Fiesta); Nebraska (8-3, Liberty); Iowa State (8-3, Peach), Washington (7-4, Rose) and Brigham Young (9-2), all three tied for 14th; North Texas State (9-2); San Diego State (9-1) and Texas A&M (7-3, Bluebonnet), both tied for 19th and each with a regular-season game remaining Dec. 3; and Southern California (7-4, Bluebonnet).

Buckeye burnouts?

It may only be a coincidence, but there is a long line of Ohio State fullbacks who made it big in the NFL for a year or two and then faded from prominence. Aside from the puzzling career of Bob Ferguson, who never did make it in the pros, there is Bob White, Matt Snell, John Brockington and Jim Otis. Will Cincinnati's Pete Johnson follow the same course?

Coach of Butler men sees no problems

Kathy Ellis Hood in the swim

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — If one sport has been sexually liberated, it's swimming — where more and more women are coaching men's collegiate teams.

Former Olympic medalist Kathy Ellis Hood is the latest to follow the trail blazed by Miki King at the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Hood, who does not consider herself a member of the women's feminist movement, will guide the Butler University swimming and diving team this season.

SHE DOESN'T believe it's a big thing.

"I'm a person and a coach. That's it. I don't see how sex can enter into coaching swimming. It's not a totally male dominated world. I do expect to be treated as a coach.

"If and when we can coach football, that would be a different story."

She launched her third career — first she was a teen-age Olympic competitor and then she married after college and raised a family — in October, taking over the Bulldogs tank position that became vacant after the death of Gene Lee.

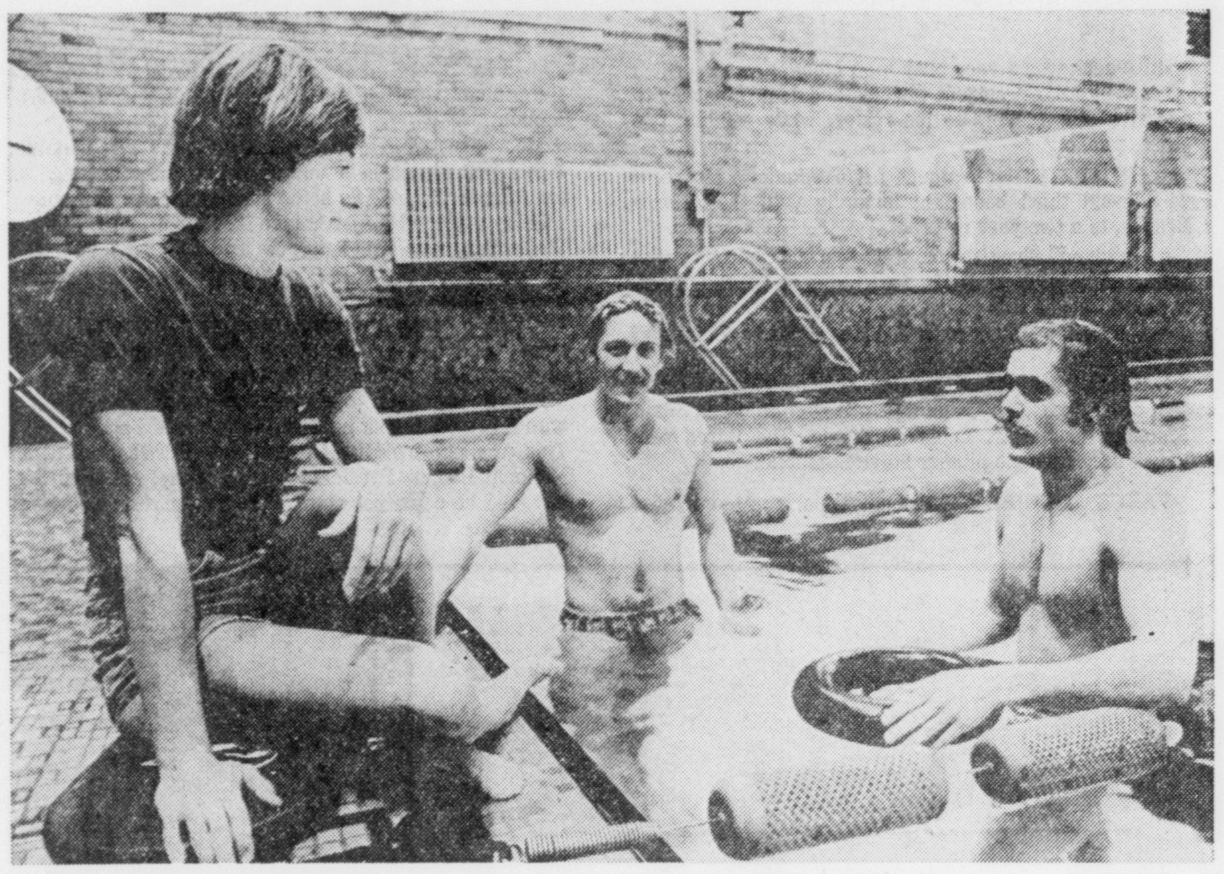

As Kathy Ellis, she won four medals in the 1964 Olympics — two gold on relays and a pair of bronze in the 100-meter freestyle and butterfly events.

"THE GUYS have accepted me, but I didn't feel they wouldn't," she said. "I've coached boys and girls together at Riviera (Swim Club in Indianapolis) and there's been no problems.

"More and more women are getting into coaching and I don't think there's the barrier there was before."

In fact, she said that in Butler's February dual meet with Xavier of Cincinnati the winning coach will be a woman since the Ohio school also has a female leader.

She said Valparaiso, in Butler's own Indiana Collegiate Conference, also is coached by a woman. The meet against the Crusaders will be Dec. 3.

BUTLER UNIVERSITY swimming coach Kathy Ellis Hood talks with her team co-captains Eric Tuegel (center) and Jon Towler during a practice session. As Kathy Ellis, a teenager, she won two Gold and two Bronze medals in swimming at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics. "The guys have accepted me," she says.

"I TALKED to Doc (Indiana University swimming Coach James E. "Doc" Counsilman) before I took the job offered by Athletic Director Bill Sylvester and he said there would be no problems. He thought it was a great challenge for me."

Mrs. Hood attended IU after her Olympic success and remained in training under Counsilman for several years before deciding to retire.

Her squad consists of eight male swimmers and at least two female divers.

"See. I'm not alone with the guys, even on road trips," she joked.

The men include two seniors, two juniors and four sophomores with the seniors, John Fowler and Eric Tuegel, likely her best athletes, although juniors Dan Lee and Tommy Joe Fry also are promising, she said.

SOPHOMORES ARE John Prittie, John Paul Davis, Andy Elder and Rob Brown. The regular divers are Jill Blankenhorn and Ann Zintel, but two others also have worked with the crew.

Mrs. Hood said she supervises the divers, but she doesn't have enough expertise to be a coach. "The girls pretty much work on their own," she said.

The Butler program has only been active five years, she said, but "I hope next year it will pick up."

Butler officials, especially Sylvester, were directed toward Mrs. Hood by former Bulldog swimmers Price Fishback and Greg Tuegel, who were co-coaches with her at Riviera. She said she guessed she owed the opportunity partly to them.

"I knew I could do it. I wasn't sure I would. There's so much attention to me. I want more for my guys."

Wabash an NCAA title contender

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — It never happened to Frank Navarro when he coached Columbia, but Saturday he will lead little Wabash into the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl football finale against Widener at Phenix City, Ala.

It's the NCAA Division III title game and for Wabash, it's the last chapter of a "rags-to-riches" tale.

Wabash, with an all-male enrollment of 850, will be in a post-season football bowl game for the first time. The Little Giants beat two bigger and favored Minnesota outfits — St. John's and Morris — to get this far.

"I'M PROUD OF these kids," said Navarro, completing his fourth year as coach at the Crawfordsville, Ind. school. "It's been a 'town-and-gown' effort."

Navarro said he and his staff concentrated on just three games during the regular season — two games against ranked teams in Michigan, Albion and Hope, and the last contest against arch-rival DePauw. Wabash beat Albion but lost to Hope by two points — its only loss of the season.

Since then the Little Giants have won 10 in a row.

"I thought we would have a 'positive' season because we have a group of men who are very Wabash-conscious," Navarro said.

WABASH IS built around a six-foot, 193-pound senior signal-caller from Wilmette, Ill., Dave Harvey, referred to by his coach as a "total quarterback."

"By that I mean he has to be able to run and pass and be able to get people to follow him," Navarro said. "Harvey has matured as a leader.

"Against Minnesota-Morris he didn't throw the ball as many times as he usually does, but he had a consistent game."

Harvey passed for two touchdowns and scored another in Wabash's 37-21 win over Morris.

From a physical standpoint, Wabash will be the underdog Saturday for the third week in a row. Widener has the Division III leading scorer, running back Chip Zawoiski, with 21 touchdowns and a 134-yard rushing average.

WIDENER, OF Pennsylvania, lost only to Fordham early in the season and defeated Central Iowa and Albany State to qualify for the bowl game.

The two finalists exchanged films, but Navarro said the things that got Wabash this far are the most important this week.

"What you have to do is do the little things right," he said. "You start slow and build on that, sort of ant style."

The Little Giants leave for Alabama Thursday. They will practice twice at Phenix City and will visit nearby Plains, Ga., the hometown of President Carter, on Friday.

Dallas keeps on winning, clinches playoff berth

DALLAS (UPI) — The fact apparently escaped a lot of people over the weekend — including the hierarchy of the National Football League. But the Dallas Cowboys have clinched a playoff spot for the 11th time in the past 12 years.

When Cowboy officials made it into their office Monday following Dallas' 14-7 victory over Washington, a tedious check of the playoff and tiebreak possibilities revealed the team can do no worse than be a wild card entry, even if it loses its last three games.

And when the Cowboys double checked with the league office in New York, officials there discovered the same thing.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL teams could tie Dallas with a 9-5 record if the Cowboys lost their three final games against Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver, Dallas would own a tiebreak advantage in every case.

The Cowboys, however, expect to do somewhat better than a wild card position and they can clinch the NFC East championship next Sunday with a victory over Philadelphia.

This leap into the post-season action was brought about by two touchdowns in the second half Sunday for a come-from-behind decision over the Redskins.

And although running back Tony Dorsett is not in the "old pro" category yet, he is a pretty good judge of momentum. He thought he saw some against Washington.

"The difference between the first half and the second half of that game was that in the second half we finally decided to play some football," Dorsett said. "Our guys went out there and started putting their hats on people.

"BACKS WERE running hard, Roger (quarterback Roger Staubach) was throwing good and the receivers were catching it. That's it. It was a team effort in the second half."

Coach Tom Landry was obviously pleased to see the Cowboys' effort in the second half.

"Everyone knew at the half we were playing poorly, or at least we were getting poor results," Landry said.

"I told them (at intermission) that I felt we had to rededicate ourselves for 30 more minutes of football and we had to be better than we were the first half.

"I don't remember my exact words, but we knew we had to play hard today. But we still weren't playing hard enough because they (Washington) were playing harder the first half.

"That's what I had to try to convince the players. Then in the second half we were better than they were. I'm talking about hitting, moving and everything else."

Harper matmen get quick start

Led by veteran John Preissing, six Harper wrestlers posted double wins to launch the Hawk mat schedule on the upswing.

Harper stomped both Lake County, 35-5, and Kennedy-King, 39-15, in a double dual meet hosted by the coach Norm Lovelace-led Hawks.

Preissing, at 150, blanked one foe and toppled another by default. Other two-time winners — all freshmen — were former Prospect standout Carl Schimmelman at 190, Wheeling's Mike Reif at 158, Arlington's Dan Weber at 134, St. Viator's Scott Malouf at 126 and Hersey's Joe Rizza at 118.

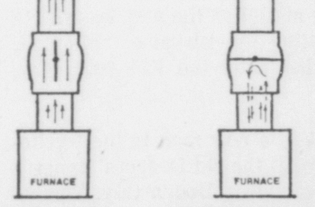

The Hawks travel to Jacksonville next for a 23-team tourney hosted by McMurray College Saturday.

Illini frosh make stunning impact

Loren Tate

Champaign, Ill.—The first time Mark Smith performed in the Assembly Hall, he had the look of a newborn colt: all legs and elbows, quick but unsteady.

It was the 1975 Elite Eight tournament, and Smith was an unknown sophomore, 6-4 and 160, listed somewhere below Derek Holcomb, Chris Williams and the other regulars on a 29-1 powerhouse.

Yet in the semi-final round of that tournament, with the high-strung Williams coming unglued and the giant Holcomb being neutralized by Wendell Phillips' Larry Williams, the gangling Smith took up a disintegrating Richwoods pennant and contributed 18 points to a losing cause.

THERE WERE those who saw greatness in Smith even then. Not this writer. Too skinny, was the evaluation here.

But 16-year-old sophomores grow . . . and mature. Last season Smith — for all the publicity given Chicago-area stars over Peorians — was probably the finest high school player in Illinois.

"I really didn't have to be convinced," said Illini coach Lou Henson, whose original recruiting efforts on Holcomb led him to Smith, "but when I saw him score 48 points one night and 49 the next, I was certain, I knew he could help our program."

Smith now hovers around the 6-foot-7 mark, and is an explosive 195 pounds. The friendly, baby-faced rookie moves around so quietly, you don't expect him to do the things he does. But three times Friday night he brought this staid viewer right out of a press box seat.

AS A PAIR, Smith and Westinghouse's pure shooter, Eddie Johnson (also 6-7), are making a stunning impact on this UI team. Coach Lou Henson won't compare athletes but mark it down: they are the finest pair of forwards he has recruited in 15 years in the business.

With the starting five faltering badly against Charlotte — as a unit they host .308 (12 for 39) — Alias Smith and Johnson came off the bench to mesh 11 of 17 fielders and 26 points.

After analyzing film of the 68-64 loss to last season's NCAA fourth-place team, Henson said:

"It was a case of our veterans not playing as well as they should. Neil Bresnahan played hard but we can't have him fouling out with 15 minutes of playing time. And Levi Cobb is having some trouble getting the ball in the hoop."

SOPHOMORES Bresnahan and Cobb are the forwards whose jobs are in jeopardy. And there is also the possibility of any of these forwards moving to center if Rich Adams, who was 2-for-8 with three turnovers, doesn't come along.

"The fact the young players — and I would include Reno Gray in that — did so well is not surprising. They've been beating our veterans in practice rather consistently. We don't plan any lineup changes at this point, although we could bring Smith and Johnson in sooner," said Henson.

Henson can't move much faster than he did in the opener. Smith entered after little more than three minutes and played 28 of the 40. Johnson came in for Cobb after five minutes and played 18. The two plebes were the only double-figure scorers for Illinois.

"The disturbing aspect," said Henson, "is that while we played hard, some of the problems we encountered a year ago are still with us. And we missed Steve Lanter (out with knee surgery) against the zone because we didn't get the penetration we needed from the top."

FROM A positive standpoint, Alias Smith and Johnson indicated they're ready to contribute as much as anyone toward making the 1977-78 Illini season a success. They played with poise, carried out their assignments to Henson's satisfaction and put across the point that freshmen — if they're the RIGHT freshmen — can play effectively at the major college level.

Smith, especially, has a flair for the spectacular. As interest builds in the burgeoning Henson basketball program, this quiet young man with the corkscrew moves could emerge as the long-term leader.

For one thing, he's more fun to watch than any Illini in years.

Bowlers roll in Mid-Suburban play

by VIC NOVAK

Although it's hard to know who will be the leading individual Mid Suburban League girls bowlers this season, most observers agree that Forest View is the favorite for the conference team title, and with good reason.

The Falcons return four starters from last season's state championship squad. They are seniors Judy Pleickhardt, Debbie Compton, and Karen Topple plus sophomore Karen Ellingsworth.

In the 1977 state tournament, Pleickhardt averaged 174, Toppel and Ellingsworth 161 each, and Compton 160.

In the 1976 state tournament, Pleickhardt achieved the highest series. Then she bowled games of 199, 202, and 181 for a 581 series.

FOREST VIEW'S only loss, though, is a tough one, Nancy Lachus. She produced the top series of the 1977 state tournament when she bowled 185, 216, and 201 games for a 581 series. In district competition last year, Lachus had a 601 series.

Despite the loss of Lachus, Forest View coach Warren Myers believes his team will be in the thick of the conference race. "I expect to be in there," said Myers.

The Forest View coach also figures his chances for a second, consecutive and third state title should be strong because of the four returning starters. "They'd better be good," Myers said.

If anyone beats out Forest View for the conference title, it could be Arlington, which did just that last season.

HOWEVER, THE Cardinal girls lost seven players, including three senior regulars. "It's hard to say," said Thompson when asked if her team could repeat as MSL champs.

Junior Barb Dougherty leads Arlington. She made the state tournament last season, averaging 156.

She'll be joined by fellow juniors Nancy Weber and Janet Brown plus senior Diane Predick and Debbie Savage. Last season, Weber and Brown averaged 148 and 140 respectively while Savage and Predick showed 130 games averages.

Although Forest View and Arlington are the league favorites, teams like Rolling Meadows, Prospect, Wheeling, Hersey, and Palatine could surprise.

Statewide, Abingdon, last season's state runnerup, and Evergreen Park, the fourth place finisher in the same state tournament, are powerhouses again.

The 1977-78 MSL girls bowling season begins tonight at Fair Lanes Bowl in Rolling Meadows. The matches, all with 4:30 p.m. starting times, are Rolling Meadows vs. Schaumburg, Wheeling vs. Buffalo Grove, Prospect vs. Forest View, Palatine vs. Arlington, Fremd vs. Elk Grove, and Hersey vs. Hoffman Estates.

In a non-conference match, Conant visits Elgin.

All Mid Suburban League girls bowling meets are held on Tuesday and Friday evenings at Fair Lanes Bowl.

Illini top Arizona; Adams pours in 39

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Center Rich Adams scored a career high 39 points to lead Illinois to a record-breaking 113-107 victory over the University of Arizona Monday night.

The Illini broke the game open early in the second half by outscoring the Wildcats 17-6 to take a 68-56 lead. Later they extended the bulge to as many as 19 points behind Keno Gray's 18-point second half explosion.

Hudie Matthews added 15 points and Mark Smith 11 to the Illini cause. The combined 220 points broke the old Assembly Hall two-team record of 215.

In other Midwest college basketball games Monday Indiana State shocked Purdue 91-63, Ohio State rolled over Marshall 81-65, and Michigan State nipped Central Michigan 68-61.

Ex-sports agent draws jail term

MINEOLA, N.Y. — Former sports agent Richard Sorkin was sentenced Monday to an indeterminate term of up to three years in prison on his guilty plea to embezzling $360,000 from seven professional hockey and basketball players.

The 37-year-old Sorkin stood silently in Nassau County Court as his attorney, Richard Reisch, pleaded for a probationary sentence that would have kept his client out of jail.

"He wasn't trying to take the money for himself," Reisch told Judge Henderson Morrison. "He lost the players' money investing in the stock market, and he gambled, trying to do what people in similar circumstances will often do to recoup losses."

Penn State gains Lambert Trophy

NEW YORK — Fiesta Bowl-bound Penn State's 15-13 victory Saturday over Pittsburgh has earned the Nittany Lions their 11th Lambert Trophy in 13 years.

Penn State, riding a seven-game winning streak and a 10-1 record for the season, drew 70 points in gaining the award, emblematic of major college football supremacy in the East.

Coach Joe Paterno's team will be formerly recognized as Eastern champion at a Thursday luncheon.

Pittsburgh was runnerup in the balloting by a panel of sports writers and athletic directors with 59 points. Completing the top 10 were Colgate (56), Yale (51), Rutgers (34), Syracuse (6-5), Brown (31,) Army (28), Dartmouth (10) and Boston College (6).

Sportsman's yields record payoff

CICERO, Ill. — One lucky bettor among 6,001 invested $3 and went home with a bonanza never before equalled Monday when the ninth-race trifecta at Sportsman's Park paid $69,473.70.

Prestige Type paid $23.40 to win, having been sent off at odds of 10-1, and Sixth Bird's $28.40 to place and Panhandle Star's $3.20 to show helped combine for the 10-1-7 trifecta.

It was the largest return ever in North America at a thoroughbred track for a $2 bet on the trifecta, wherein a bettor must select the first three horses in order of finish.

Three sheets – No sale, owner says

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A local promoter who claims he was intoxicated when he sold the Providence Shooting Stars franchise has threatened legal action to block the opening home game of the Eastern Basketball Association team.

Keven McKenna, representing promoter Robert "Skip" Chernov, said Sunday he would seek a temporary restraining order this week in Kent County Superior Court to halt the scheduled Saturday game in the West Warwick sports arena.

Chernov, who has completed several weeks of detoxification treatment at the state Institute of Mental Health, claims that the Providence businessmen who bought the team took advantage of his drinking problem.

Campbell heads up UPI backfield

NEW YORK — If any Heisman Trophy voters were waiting to see Texas' Earl Campbell just one more time last Saturday before making up their minds, they were not disappointed.

Campbell, the leading candidate for that coveted trophy, rushed for 221 yards and four touchdowns against the beleaguered Texas A&M defense to lead the Longhorns to a 57-28 victory and into the Cotton Bowl with a perfect 11-0 record.

For his performance Campbell was selected to the UPI Backfield of the Week for the second time this season.

Joining him on the UPI backfield are teammate quarterback Randy McEachern, Oklahoma halfback Elvis Peacock and Virginia Tech fullback Mickey Fitzgerald.

Hoffman wrestlers fourth

Championship efforts by Ron Gordon and Darcy Rice highlighted Hoffman Estates' showing at the Wheaton Central invitational wrestling tournament.

The Hawks finished fourth in the eight-team gathering with 70 points. Addison Trail was an easy team victor with 136 points, pursued by Wheaton Central at 90 and Warren at 86.

Gordon, at 105, was hardly threatened in winning matches 13-6, 9-0 and 9-1. Rice also cruised to the 119-pound title with 12-2 and 12-0 verdicts and a 12-5 romp past veteran Blazer Tom Pawelko in the finals.

Doug Kliesner at 112 and Jim Schnecke at 138 were consolation champs. Kliesner lost to the eventual titlist in his opening round but rallied with two impressive wins.

Chris Roberts added a third place finish for Hoffman at 155.

Win at bridge

Careful play pulls six

South studied for a long while before playing to the first trick. How could he make his contract? At best it looked as if there were only 10 tricks to be gathered in.

Then he saw a way to collect 12. He started proceeding by winning the diamond in dummy. Then came a club to his ace, a spade to dummy's eight, a club ruff with the ace of trumps, a spade to dummy's jack, a second club ruff, a heart to dummy's ace, the lead of dummy's last trump to get rid of trumps while chucking the losing diamond from his own hand and then the lead of the heart deuce.

East took his queen, but had to give South the last two tricks with the jack of hearts and ace of diamonds.

South had made six trump tricks instead of just five by what is known as a dummy reversal play. It is worthy of note that if South had been careless at trick one and won the diamond in his own hand he would have lost his contract.

Ask Andy

Solar system just a speck in Milky Way

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Andy Solum, 8, of Sarasota, Fla., for his question:

HOW LONG IS THE MILKY WAY?

During the winter months the Milky Way crosses the sky near the constellations of Orion and Cassiopeia. It's a bit dimmer now than it is on dark, clear summer nights when it can be seen extending from the southern constellation Sagittarius to Cygnus, the great northern cross. The Milky Way has some black spots, caused by clouds of dust called nebula.

Many billions of stars make up the glowing band of starlight in the sky that we call the Milky Way. They are all part of our galaxy, which is shaped like a pancake.

At night we see a milky-looking strip of stars because we are inside it. The stars fan out from the center in curving, wide arms that give our galaxy a spiral or coil shape. Astronomers call the Milky Way a spiral galaxy.

The galaxy is about 10 times longer than its thickness. It is so long that light, traveling at the rate of 186,282 miles per second, takes about 120,000 years to get from one end to the other. Our solar system, made up of our sun and planets, is just a tiny speck located about 30,000 light-years from the center of the galaxy, about midway between the upper and lower edges of the galaxy.

Our earth is just a tiny part of the universe. Earth and our known planets circle the sun as part of the solar system. Our sun is actually a star and is just one of billions of stars in the huge galaxy we call the Milky Way.

Astronomers say the Milky Way is only one of countless galaxies scattered throughout space. And you'd have to travel several billion light-years to find the next one.

Much of the Milky Way is made up of clouds containing dust and gas.

Gravity holds the Milky Way together as all of its stars rotate around its center. Depending on their position in relation to the mass, some stars rotate faster than others.

Our sun, for example, is moving on a circular path at a speed of about 170 miles per second. Yet it takes our sun 200 million years to make its way completely around the center of the Milky Way. Stars closer to the center move faster since they are attracted with greater force, yet those very close to the center move slowly. For the ones near the center, most of the mass lies toward the edges of the Milky Way. A study of this motion has shown that the Milky Way's mass is equal to 200 billion suns.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Joanna Ryan, 11, of Rainier, Ore., for her question:

WHY IS CHICORY ADDED TO SOME COFFEE?

Chicory, which is cultivated as a crop in the United States and southern Canada, grows wild in Europe, Asia and in parts of North America. Its root sometimes is used as a coffee substitute and it also is added occasionally to coffee.

Some persons like the flavor of chicory in their coffee, and that's the reason it is added. The mixture can be purchased in most markets.

The pure-food laws in the United States forbid the mixing of ground chicory root with coffee unless the label is plainly marked.

Chicory has spreading branches, coarse leaves and bright blue, pink or white flowers. The root of the plant is fleshy, long and milky. The plant also is called succory.

Send your question on a postcard to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.
